PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL

The regular annual meeting of the Council, Clan Gregor Society, was called to order by the Chieftain, Frank Cecil Magruder, in the Parish House, St. Paul's Rock Creek Church, Washington, D. C. at 9:30 A.M., 19 October, 1945. The pine boughs used as decoration came from the home of Mrs. Stone, one of the Charter members. The large flag and other banners and Service Flag were also used.

The meeting was opened with The Lord's Prayer and greetings of welcome by the Chieftain.

Minutes of the last Council meeting were reported by the Deputy Scribe who also reported having sent cards to Council members.

The Registrar discussed the proposed By-Law change (Rule VI, Section 13) whereby Junior Members shall be required to pay annual dues in the amount of fifty cents. (50c). The Historian also discussed this proposed change and explained to the council that payment of dues by juniors would give them a feeling of participation and increase interest among these younger members.

It was recommended that a committee be appointed to report on the Scholarship Fund and investigate the possibilities of making it available for use to any member of the Clan, rather than to blood members only. Roger Gregory Magruder, Charlottesville, Virginia was named to head this committee.

The following statement of expenditures was read and approved:

Mimeographing letter, questionnaire and ballots	$10.20
Printing programs	7.00
Postage	20.00
TOTAL	$37.20

The following members were present at the Council meeting:

The Chieftain	Susie May van den'Berg
Thomas Garland Magruder	Phil. H. Sheriff
Regina Magruder Hill	Frederick H. Baugh

PROCEEDINGS OF THE 1945 ANNUAL GATHERING OF THE AMERICAN CLAN GREGOR SOCIETY

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1945

The first regular annual meeting of the American Clan Gregor Society since 1941 was called to order by the Chieftain at 10:50 A.M., 19 October, 1945 in the Parish House, St. Paul's Rock Creek Church, Washington, D. C. with approximately thirty-eight (38) persons in attendance. The Clan Chaplain, Rev. Enoch Magruder Thompson, gave the invocation. The Parish House was charmingly decorated with pine from "Stonehurst"—home of Mrs. Frank Pelham Stone and was given in memory of her son, Frank Pelham Stone, Jr.

The address by the Chieftain welcomed those present, reviewed the progress of the Society since his elction in 1941, outlined further plans and ambitions of the Clan, and expressed the hope that the Society might move forward to greater accomplishments in the coming year.

The report of the Historian, Miss Regina Magruder Hill, contained many interesting facts concerning those of our members who have died since the last meeting.

The report of the Treasurer, Mr. John Edwin Muncaster, and the attest of the auditing committee was read by the acting scribe and reflects a comfortable bank balance remaining on hand at the close of the 1945 Fiscal Year. These reports were accepted by the Society and become a part of the proceedings.

The Registrar, Mrs. O. O. van den'Berg, explained to the Society the use and purpose of the set of yearbooks from the estate of Alexander Muncaster which has been completely bound and made available for use by future registrars. An index of comprehensive nature is in process of being prepared to cover this set of yearbooks.

Greetings and communications from members unable to be present were read by the Scribe.

The Historian reported on the activities of the Service Flag Committee and requested the cooperation of all the members in order that the committee's efforts to maintain the flag in current status may be successful. She urged members to report any interesting fact, awards of medals and emblems, and any other pertinent information concerning those of the members who are serving in the Armed Forces.

The Chieftain called a short recess to welcome the Junior Past Chieftain and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Marion Magruder of Lexington, Kentucky.

At noon the Society recessed to St. Paul's Church where a most enjoyable service was conducted by the Rector, Charles Wills Wood, assisted by Rev. Enoch Magruder Thompson. The Rector gave a short historical sketch of the origin and growth of Rock Creek Parish which was interesting and enlightening.

An excellent luncheon followed in the Parish House, served by the Ladies of the Guild. The Clan is deeply grateful for their service and to the Church for the use of the Parish House.

Herbert Thomas Magruder reported on the progress of the committee engaged in the development of a service button or emblem for Clan members who have served in the Armed Forces.

The Chieftain reported on replies received from members relative to motions for the establishment of deputy groups, pointing out the fact that generally reactions were favorable.

A committee was appointed with Herbert Thomas Magruder as Temporary Chairman to develop a workable plan to create a fund by popular subscription, legacies, memorial gifts, et cetra, for the purpose of expanding and enlarging the Society.

Memorials were read by the Historian.

Much interesting discussion was heard on various plans for the reinstatement of members delinquent in their dues and a motion was made by Henry Magruder Taylor and regularly accepted to reinstate these members by the payment now of dues for the Current Year, October, 1945, to the Gathering in October, 1946.

A motion to amend the By-Laws of 1919, Rule VI, Section 13, to read: Junior Members under eighteen years of age shall pay dues of fifty cents (50c) per year, payable in October of each year, or at the time of application to membership in the Society, was signed by the following active members: Herbert Thomas Magruder, Henry M. Taylor, Mrs. G. Magruder, Regina Magruder Hill, Susie May Geddes van den'Berg, Marion M. Harrison, J. Franklin Adams, Mrs. F. C. Magruder, Minnete Wheat, Elizabeth Knox Taylor.

The proposed amendment to the 1919 By-Laws, Rule VI, Section 13, providing for the payment of dues by junior members was accepted and made a part of the proceedings.

New officers to serve for the 1946 Fiscal Year were elected.

The Scribe was instructed to write letters to the Church for the use of the Parish House, to the Guild for the luncheon, to Mr. Ferneyhough of Virginia and to Mr. Muncaster to express regret for their absence and good wishes for their speedy recovery.

List of new members during the 1945 Fiscal Year was read by the Registrar.

The Chieftain appointed Deputy Chieftains to serve during the coming year.

The Official Pine used at the 1945 Gathering was given by Mrs. Lilly M. Stone of "Glenmore, Montgomery County, Maryland, in memory of her grandson, Frank Pelham Stone, 2nd.

No other new business appearing, the 1945 Clan Gregor meeting closed at 4:30 P. M., 19 October, 1945, to the tune of Auld Lang Syne, led by Emma Muncaster.

JANE MAGRUDER HAYDEN, Scribe.

ADDRESS of FRANK CECIL MAGRUDER, Chieftain

MY CLANSPEOPLE:

After four long weary years of war and destruction, with abandonment of all social and unnecessary meetings, we have emerged gloriously victorious. During this horrid World War II, or Global War, as some choose to call it, and since the last meeting of The American Clan Gregor Society, God in His great wisdom and mercy has seen fit to take home to the Heavenly abode many of our members and some of our people from the Armed Forces; to the bereaved loved ones left behind we express our heartfelt sympathy. Let us bow our heads and pause a moment in silent prayer, in memory of those who have departed.

We are again ready to assume our responsibilities in this world of interesting things and places and to go about our modes of living in the regular routine of affairs, therefore we are assembled here at this time for the purpose of meeting our kinsfolk and to renew the friendships that existed some years ago.

It was in October, 1941 that I was elected the Seventh Chieftain of the American Clan Gregor Society. This being the first regular gathering since that time. I wish to extend hearty greetings and felicitations to all members of our Clan, your friends, and guests of the Society. I extend a welcoming voice to each one and hope all will enjoy very pleasant associations, make new acquaintances and meet new clansfolk.

Our Junior Past Chieftain, William Marion Magruder, in his address of 1941, spoke of the threats of war, and the endangerments of our liberty and constitutional rights and privileges. Soon after the adjournment of that meeting the dark clouds of war and the fangs of the enemies began to close in upon our country. Conditions grew more and more critical until the summer of 1942 when it was deemed prudent to dispense with an annual gathering of the American Clan Gregor Society. As you all were aware that the lack of transportation, gas and hotel accommodations, and the duties of everyone at their war work, proved it impractical to get together, therefore there was no proceedings, nor program for a Year Book. The same situation was true in 1943. However, in October, 1943 I called a meeting of the Council at my home to transact some urgent business of the Society. Reports of committees, facts, and information, were all recorded and filed for future reference. Then again in October, 1944 the Council met at my home and we fulfilled the duties of that group. All valuable materials ; such as citations, Clan news, reports of Registrar, Historian and Deputy Scribe, report of Committee on the Service Flag Project, and some obituaries were compiled. All of this material was sent to our worthy Editor for the 1944 Year Book, which has been Published and sent to the members and libraries. New material and data is now in the hands of the Printers for 1945 Year Book. Thus you may see that your capable and efficient Registrar, Historian, Committees and Editor have been constantly at work and thinking of the Welfare of the Clan. "Ye shall know them by the fruits of their labor."

At the beginning of my term of service I requested that each member of the Society send in a chart of at least four generations of his family ancestors in order that I may prepare a Master Chart of the decedents of Alexander Magruder the Immigrant. About 14 persons responded to that request. A start on the chart has been made and it may be possible that with a lesser demand on my time, with the close of the war, some form of chart will be made. However, in order to have the chart complete it will be necessary that all members send in their charts.

Early in the summer of 1945, while we were still in the heat of battle with Japan, the "Questionnaires" were prepared, and mailed to some 425 members. Of said Questionnaires I only received 128 replies ; some were returned for more correct addresses ; and from some we have not heard.

Now that the combative period of the war is past, let us all strive to gain new members for the clan. Bear in mind the admonition of the first great Chieftain of the American Clan Gregor Society, Dr. Edward May Magruder, who repeated the remark, "People who do not venerate and perpetuate the memory of the lives and deeds of their ancestors, will never themselves do anything worthy to be remembered or perpetuated on the world's theatre of action." This is the 36th year since the origin of our Clan Society, henceforth let us go forward with zest and zeal. How can I help ? someone will ask.

Ever be on the alert watching for articles in newspapers and magazines about clansmen and clanswomen; send in names of deceased members; write papers of your kin for publication; serve on committees and as Deputy Chieftains; try to attend the Annual gatherings or at least send some little note to be read at such meetings; and keep your annual dues paid, so there will be finances to maintain the Society's business.

In conclusion I must thank all members of my official family, for their hearty cooperation and faithful untiring assistance during these past four years.

“Not a ladder from earth to heaven,
Not an alter to any creed
But simple service, simply given
To our own clan in their proper need.
The Past has taught its Lessons,
The Present has its Duty,
And the Future its Hope.”

A CALL FROM THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

REGINA MAGRUDER HILL, Chairman

Every organization depends upon a strong, active membership to carry on the work undertaken. It needs officers, chairmen of committees, and talent for programs, and for the writing of articles for the Year Book, and fund to carry on the work. All of this comes from the membership and without a large, active working membership very little constructive work can be accomplished.

The organization needs young members and you will be glad to know that a number have come in since the Gathering in 1945, among them several of our Honor Roll members, but we need more. Every member of the Honor Roll is eligible to membership and there are a great many young men on this list and a few women.

The Clan wants Junior members, those young people below the age of eighteen. At the 1945 Gathering it was voted that Junior Members pay dues of 50c a year. Several have already joined.

American Clan Gregor Society wishes all of its membership to be active. Some have allowed their dues to lapse. Why? At the Gathering in October, 1945, this subject was discussed and a motion was passed to reinstate all members whose dues have lapsed into active membership by the payment now of dues for the current year, October, 1945 to the Gathering in October, 1946. Many members have taken advantage of this chance to become active again, and we know that they will not again allow their dues to lapse. It is a privilege to be a member of the American Clan Gregor Society.

MOTION BY MRS. VAN DEN'BERG

2122 California St., N. W.

Washington 8, D. C.

August, 1945.

MY FELLOW CLANSMEN:

With the approval of the Chieftain of the American Clan Gregor Society I am sending you, for your consideration and vote, the enclosed Questionnaire, Resolution and Motion, which I shall present at the meeting of the Clan in October, 1945, whether the "meeting" is a Gathering or a Council Meeting.

These two papers—The Resolution and Motion—were suggested to me in conversation with Mr. George Magruder Battey of Georgia, a Clan member since 1940.

After drafting these two papers I consulted our Historian, Miss Regina Magruder Hill; Mr. Thomas Garland Magruder, a clansman since 1941; and Mr. Herbert Thomas Magruder, a former Chieftain, and receiving their endorsement I presented these ideas to the Chieftain. Our Chieftain thought so well of the idea that he authorized me to write this letter, and also to have the three enclosed papers mimeographed and sent to every member of the Clan. We hope for your cooperation.

Upon the number of members who plan to attend the "meeting" in Washington, D. C., on October 19, 1945, depends whether there will be a Gathering or a Council Meeting only. It is therefore necessary for the Chairman of the Program Committee to know well in advance the number of guests to expect.

You are requested to send in your Questionnaire as promptly as possible, and not later than September 15th, to Mr. Frank Cecil Magruder, Chieftain of the American Clan Gregor Society, 5308 North Capitol St., Washington 11, D. C.

With the highest hopes for the future of our Clan, I am,

Yours in Clan Fellowship,

SUSIE MAY GEDDES VAN DEN'BERG, Registrar

American Clan Gregor Society

PREAMBLE TO THE MOTION

I wish to quote from the Address of our first Chieftain, Dr. Edward May Magruder, which he gave on October 9, 1909, at the first Gathering of the Clan at the National Hotel in Washington, D. C.

"The purposes of this movement are:

"1st—To perpetuate the memory of our ancient Clan Gregor;

"2nd—To bring together the descendants of the Clan for mutual acquaintance;

"3rd—To obtain and disseminate information whereby the various members of the Clan may be enabled to trace their lineage and by which a history of the American Clansmen may be compiled".

This movement developed into the organization of American Clan Gregor, or as we have it today, American Clan Gregor Society. The organization is now in its thirty-sixth year. It has a membership of over three hundred members paying dues. These dues cover the cost of the publication of the Year Book, the expenses incident to the Gatherings in Washington, D. C., and the payment of postage of those officers who present their bills. There is a little surplus which can be used for the expansion of the Society, such as: placing the Year Book in a greater number of Libraries; photostating of Bible and other records, such as old Wills, land grants, marriage bonds, and genealogical charts; or for the making of cuts or photographs of family portraits, old homes, churches, tombstones, and historic spots of interest and connection with the families and history of the Society; or for the future acquiring of a headquarters for the Society, possibly an old Magruder home in Maryland. There is also no fund for the binding of genealogical and other records such as the genealogical information sheets, (some of these latter records are completed and are protected only by manila envelopes). Another work which will need printing, binding and distributing, when the Historian and I have it ready for publication, is a complete "Index" of the Year Books, which in reality will be a genealogical research reference with the names of all persons, proper names, also names of properties, schools, colleges, universities, cemeteries, towns, and counties mentioned in the Year Books, also excerpts from and references to articles and papers contained therein. In fact all informative matter contained in the Year Books and where to find it.

To have funds to do all of this, and to accomplish it, would enhance the Year Books and add greatly to the Archives of the Society.

So, in order to expand, enhance, and increase the prestige of the American Clan Gregor Society, I hereby offer the following Motion:

I move: That a committee with Chairman and officers, be appointed, or elected, which will form a plan to create a fund by popular subscription, legacies, memorial gifts, et cetera, for the purpose of expanding and enlarging the American Clan Gregor Society.

Whereas: The American Clan Gregor Society has potentialities for an extremely large organization, and is now represented by members in nearly every State in the Union, many of whom live at too great a distance from the National Capitol to enjoy the privilege of attending the Annual Gatherings, and are thus deprived of one purpose of the Organization, namely, "To bring together members of the Clan for mutual acquaintance";

Therefore: In order to accomplish this successfully I offer for your consideration the following resolution:

Be It Resolved: To organize Gatherings in various localities of the United States; these Gatherings to rotate their meetings so as to enable not only Clansmen who reside in the State in which the Gathering for a given year is held to attend, but also to be open to Clansmen from other States who may wish to attend. (A plan for rotation can be worked out.) These Gatherings to be presided over by the Deputy Chieftain of the State in which the meeting is held; also that a report of the proceedings and programs, with a list of officers, members and guests attending the Gathering, to be sent to the Editor and to the Historian not later than four weeks after the Gathering is held. These gatherings are not to conflict with the "Annual Gathering of the Clan" in Washington, D. C.

This motion was adopted and the following committee was appointed to plan for a growing fund.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER

JOHN E. MUNCASTER

JULY 1, 1945

At the Gathering of 1911 Clan Gregor Society elected your humble servant (a very antiquated expression) to serve as treasurer for one year and successive Gatherings have kept him harassing the pocket nerves of the members, and reporting his success at the gatherings. At the meeting of the Council which directed the publication of the Year Book of 1944, he was forgotten, the Editor also forgot and he did not report. However, about a month ago the Editor remembered and called for a report to date.

There was a council meeting at the home of the Chieftain in Washington on October 21st, 1944. It was attended by most of those who live close enough and some from a distance. There was a good time had by all. The treasurer reported there was a fairly good bank account but made no formal report. Of course money is made to spend and several orders were passed.

The Registrar reported that the file of year books of Alexander Muncaster, complete except for one year, had been turned over to the Chieftain for official use, and asked for permission to have them bound. The estimated cost was about four to five dollars per volume and it would make seven or eight volumes. After some discussion, the treasurer was directed to pay for the work, the books to remain in the office of the Registrar, so that succeeding Registrars can not say they have not access to the Older Year Books. While the talk of binding was on, Miss Regina Hill asked for a contribution toward having the file of Clan Gregor Year Books in the D. A. R. Library bound. Ten dollars was voted for that purpose.

Members were fairly generous in their contributions to the book of 1944 and the report shows that $434.00 was transferred to the Savings Institution of Sandy Spring, where it draws the princely interest of two per cent per annum, compounded. Safe as a war bond and just as profitable.

Of course part of this savings account will be used to pay for the book of 1945 now being edited and about ready to go to press.

I report for the term ending July 1st, 1945:

REPORT OF THE SURGEON

R. GREGORY MAGRUDER, M. D.

Charlottesville, Va.

13 November, 1945

DEAR CHIEFTAIN :

Your letter arrived today notifying me of my election as Surgeon for the Clan. I wish to thank you and the members of the Clan for this honor that has been bestowed upon me and to express my grateful appreciation.

Concerning the scholarship, since it has not been awarded since 1941, two hundred dollars interest has accumulated to date ($50.00 a year) and is usable. The principal of the scholarship amounts to about twelve hundred and forty five dollars ($1,245.00). I hope this is the information you desired. If there is anything else, I will be glad to try and find out. I believe you will hear from the Dean in a few days.

No, I do not believe I know Nathaniel M. Ewell, Jr., but hope we will see him at the University.

With best wishes and hoping to see you soon.

Sincerely,

R. GREGORY MAGRUDER

November 14, 1945.

Mr. Frank Cecil Magruder
5308 N. Capitol Street
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. MAGRUDER :

Replying to your letter of November 10th with reference to the Doctor Edward May Magruder Medical Scholarship I beg to inform you that this scholarship was established in 1927 by the American Clan Gregor Society with an annual stipend of $50.00. The scholarship is awarded upon recommendation of the Society. No appointments were made for the sessions 1944-45 or 1945-46. The Bursar has on hand a total of $200.00 which amount would care for four scholarships at the usual amolument of $50.00.

Sincerely yours,

H. E. JORDAN, Dean.

CITATIONS

COMMODORE JOHN H. MAGRUDER, JR.

Commodore John H. Magruder, Jr., was awarded the LEGION OF MERIT and the following Citation in the name of the President of the United States:

"For distinguishing himself by exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service in connection with operations against the enemy as Deputy Commander Forward Area Central Pacific and Deputy Commander Marianas during the period 26 January to 14 December, 1945. While serving in this highly responsible position, he planned and directed the development of important bases in the Central Pacific Area, particularly Iwo Jima, Volcano Island. He also contributed directly to the highly successful planning and execution of administrative affairs of military government, the repatriation of Japanese military and civilian personnel, the occupation of former Japanese-held bases, and the separation of Army and Navy logistic functions in the Area. His high degree of professional attainments, administrative ability, keen appreciation of International Law and the Rules of Land Warfare, as they applied to enemy aliens, and the ability to coordinate the administration and government of diverse ethnic groups of people were unique. His conscientious application to detail, wholehearted devotion to duty and inspirational leadership were contributing factors in the success of the Central Pacific Campaign and the ultimate total defeat of the Japanese Empire. His conduct throughout was outstanding and in keeping with the highest traditions of the Naval Service."

(Signed) G. D. MURRAY, Vice-Admiral, U. S. Navy

The Commander in Chief, U. S. Fleet, takes pleasure in commending Commodore John H. Magruder, Jr., United States Navy for services as set forth in the following CITATION:

"For outstanding performance of duty as Chief of Staff while serving on the Staff of Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier, from January 14, 1943, to January 1, 1945. Exercising keen foresight and expert administrative ability, Commodore Magruder conceived and correlated offensive operations of Frontier air and surface forces to meet the submarine threat to our convoys and vital war shipping and in addition acted as a direct representative of the Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier, in dealings with representatives of foreign governments relative to mutual problems, particularly during the subsequent turning over of the French Antilles possessions to the Allied cause. By his sound judgment, untiring efforts and zealous devotion to the varied and complex details of his vital assignment, Commodore Magruder contributed materially to the success of the war effort and upheld the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

A copy of this citation has been made a part of Commodore Magruder's official record and he is hereby authorized to wear the Commendation Ribbon.

(Signed) E. J. KING, Fleet Admiral, United States Navy.

Commodore Magruder has sent for the Archives of the Clan a press release and photographs of the surrender of the Bonin Islands.

PRIVATE 1st CLASS CHARLES A. MACGREGOR

34th Infantry Division, U. S. Army, 135th Infantry Regiment

A Bronze Star Medal is awarded to the following named individual:

"Charles A. MacGregor (33119612), Private First Class, Infantry, Service Company, 135th Infantry Regiment. For heroic achievement in action on December 10, 1943, in the vicinity of Mt. Pantana, Italy, PFC MacGregor was spending the night in the regimental message center building when it was hit by enemy artillery, which wounded nine men, some seriously, PFC MacGregor immediately rendered what aid he could, but realizing that more aid was needed, he made his way in the darkness to the aid station, only to find that all personnel were busy taking care of numerous casualties. Securing a quantity of medical supplies, he made his way back to his wounded comrades and did much to ease their suffering. The courage and devotion to his comrades of PFC MacGregor gained for him the respect and admiration of all men of his organization. Entered military service from Stafford, Virginia."

1st LIEUT. JOSEPH DICKEY PHILLIPS

1st. Lieut. Phillips was one of the men among the ones who received the following Citation:

"... The Air Medal is hereby awarded to the following named officers for meritorious achievement in aerial flight in China during the periods indicated. As pilots of Helicopter aircraft, they completed twenty-five or more rescue missions. Because of the maneuverability of their aircraft, they were called upon to fly into the mountainous area of the "Hump" to rescue survivors of plane crashes there. A number of their missions were accomplished despite adverse weather, and they made hazardous landings and take-offs at locations inaccessible to other means of rescue. Disregarding the dangers involving carrying out their missions, these officers are responsible for the rescue of a number of military personnel from wild and remote regions. Their courage and devotion to duty reflects high credit upon their personal records and upon the Army Air Forces."

Joseph D. Phillips, 0172034, First Lieutenant (then Second Lieutenant), Air Corps, Pilot. 8 May, 1945 to 2 September, 1945."

FRANK GILBREADTH HAMILTON

By HELEN EWELL HORD

Frank Gilbreadth Hamilton, son of Laura Susan Lavenia Ewell and John William Hamilton, was born on July 21, 1921 at Locust Dale, Madison County, Virginia. When he was four years of age, his parents located near Unionville, Orange County, Virginia. It was here that Frank grew up. Having lost an only sister in her early infancy, he was raised as an only child.

He loved the farm and every thing that related to the farm—the horses, the cows, the hogs, the poultry, the growing crops, the broad meadow with the babbling brook—everything. It was a wonderful place in which to grow up.

It was this love for the farm that caused him while in high school to major in agriculture. After graduating from Unionville High School in 1939, he decided upon civil engineering as his life's work, so in the fall of 1940 he entered Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Virginia. Christmas 1941, as he was on his way home to spend the holiday with his parents, he and his mother met with a serious automobile accident which necessitated his dropping out of school for the rest of the term.

Determined to get as much training as possible before entering the services of his country and acting upon the advice of those in authority, he went back to V.M.I. in the fall of 1942. The time had now come when the Government said they were needed, so there at V.M.I. on June 14, 1943, along with the student body of the Institute, he was inducted into the army of the United States.

After taking his basic training at Fort McClellan, Anniston, Alabama, he was sent to the Illinois School of Technology, Chicago, to continue the study of civil engineering. He was there when the Government called all Army Specialized Training Program students who were not in advanced classes into active service.

From school he was sent to Camp White, Oregon and was put in Company D, 382 Infantry, 96th Division, 6th Army, 24th Army Corps. Then on to Camp Luis Obispo, California, and Camp Beal, Port of Embarkation. He received further training in Hawaii under General Robert Richardson.

As a member of the 96th Division, he took part in the Invasion of the Philippine Islands, landing on Leyte Island on October 20, 1944. Nine days later, or on October 29th, 1944, he was killed.

Quoting from a letter to his mother from his commanding officer: "Frank volunteered to go on a patrol on the morning of the 29th, with the mission of determining the strength in our sector and contacting the unit beside us if possible. The patrol had moved about four hundred yards across rice paddies and swampy ground, when it ran into a strong party of Japs. Fire was exchanged by both groups. Frank was one of the foremost in our patrol and during the skirmish he was hit and mortally wounded. Our patrol withdrew and although Frank was taken directly to the medical aid station he very shortly succumbed to his wounds."

He lies in Grave No. 95, United States Armed Forces Cemetery, San Jose No. 1, Leyte Island, Philippine Islands.

Frank Hamilton was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was a boy of strong character and determination. He was liked by those who knew him. Rich and poor, high and low, black and white, they all loved him. He had a kindly greeting for everyone.

"Loved he life.

Loved he honor more."

ROY EDWARD BUCHANAN

In Memory of Roy Edward Buchanan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson Buchanan, Bryan, Texas. His mother was Dorothy Magruder and his father Charles Wilson Buchanan, veteran of World War I, who passed away September 29, 1934.

Edward was only a kid of a boy when he joined the Navy, being just seventeen years old. He left home with a wave of his hand, his laughing eyes bright, and a happy smile on his face, now only a memory. In two years he was a sacrifice on the ship Johnston, that went down off Leyte, October 24, 1944. As Radioman he was faithful to his task when the Japs bombed the ship and also six others, all alters for God, Freedom and Liberty, with our boys the human sacrifice for their Country.

No cross marks his resting place. Just "Missing in Action", the saddest words in all the world. So in memory's garden we leave our beloved Edward, just a laughing, smiling kid of a boy, a hero, missing in action for God, Home and Country.

MISS MARY MAGRUDER

From an Article in the Montgomery County Sentinel

The Mutual Improvement Association, the oldest woman's club in Maryland met at the Francis Lattie Inn on December 27 with Mrs. William H. Hough as hostess. The club has lost a valuable member in the passing of Mary Magruder, who died in the Montgomery County General Hospital on December 21, 1945.

The following memorial was read at the beginning of the meeting: "Mary Magruder, a valued member of the Association, who was born in Brookeville, Maryland, the temporary residence of her parents, Dr. William E. Magruder, and Margaret Brooke Magruder, August 22nd, 1865, lived the 80 years of her life in Sandy Spring, Maryland. After her graduation from Rockland School she attended the Maryland Normal School, training to be a teacher. The few private pupils she taught at different times doubtless would stress the ability she showed in presenting information, history and mathematics with clearness making a lasting impression, and always with unfailing patience not found in all teachers. Later in life she continued her studies at Columbia, and George Washington Universities.

Up to the last few years of her long life she gathered a fund of information, and with her prodigious memory she was sought by many of her friends for accurate dates and neighborhood history. She had a loving and forgiving disposition, never feeling a slight, and never intentionally hurting anyone with whom she came in contact.

A member of the Society of Friends, and the Sandy Spring Meeting, her practical sermons often addressed especially to the Younger members, were acceptable to all.

Miss Magruder had outlived all of her immediate family except one sister who lived for years in California. Her cousins and friends in the neighborhood took the place of her family during the last years of her life with interest and devotion. She took part in all the charitable and temperance activities wherever possible, as long as she was able."

The Montgomery County General Hospital, in which Miss Magruder died, is built on the site of Miss Magruder's old home, "Hermion". It was the dream of her father, Dr. William Magruder, that a hospital be built in the Sandy Spring Neighborhood—a dream that she realized after his death.

He was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District, past president of the Veterans' Druggist Association of the District; a member of the District Society of Natives and the Military Service Legion of the District and of Harmony Lodge, No. 17, of the Masons. Active in the old District of Columbia National Guard, Dr. Sessford was on the staff of the old 2nd Battalion, D. C. National Guard, and was commissioned a hospital steward by President Harrison in 1891. He was elected an honorary member of the Old National Fencibles.

Dr. Sessford had been connected with many pharmacies here since 1893. He was employed at Quigley's with Dr. Jesse Rutherford in Tenleytown, called Ford's Pharmacy. He was manager of other pharmacies until he retired in 1941. In 1942 he returned to business because of the war, and until April of this year worked at Temple Pharmacy, 728 F Street, N. E.

Dr. Sessford was the son of the late Joseph Stephenson Sessford, who was treasurer of Ford's Theater at the time of President Lincoln's assassination, and he was once connected with the old National Intelligencer, a publication famous here many years ago. The family came to the District of Columbia from Newcastle, England, in 1802.

Dr. Sessford married Mabel Claire MacGregor and they had one daughter, Claire, who is now Mrs. Kurz, who as a little girl gave generously of her talent to singing and dancing on the programs of the American Clan Gregor Society Gatherings. Dr. Sessford is survived by Mrs. Sessford and Claire.

MARY NICHOLSON MAGRUDER

ELIZA NICHOLSON MAGRUDER

By ROSALIE STUART MAGRUDER

These two devoted sisters were not separated many years by death. Eliza died November 15, 1941; Mary died August 3, 1945—never reconciled to the loss of her sister.

They lived all their lives in the house in which they were born, 114 Duke of Gloucester Street, Annapolis, Maryland. For a number of years they conducted, in the Naval Academy grounds, a school for young children of naval officers. They inspired in their pupils a deep and lasting affection and respect; captains and admirals, and wives and daughters of naval officers, came to call on "Miss Mary and Miss Eliza" whenever they were in Annapolis, and sent cards and remembrances from all over the world.

During the latter years of their lives they were devout members of the Roman Catholic Church, attending St. Mary's Church just across the street from their house. As members of the Christ Child Society, of which Eliza was President for some years, they showed their continued interest in the welfare of children; they collected or made useful and appealing gifts and sent quantities of packages to poor children at Christmas time.

Not many months before Mary's death she was sponsor for the U.S.S. Joseph Nicholson, named for her ancestor.

They, in common with their brother Peter, had a deep interest in the history and traditions of Maryland and Annapolis, in which their ancestors played important parts.

Seldom have two people been mourned more sincerely than these two Magruder sisters, and their places cannot be filled.

Genealogy: The Misses Magruder were the daughters of John Read Magruder and Emily Erving Nicholson; grand-daughters of George Lee Magruder and Henrietta Sanford Randall; great-granddaughters of John Read Magruder and Ann H. Addison; great-great-granddaughter of John Read Magruder and Barbara Contee; great-great-great-granddaughters of James Magruder and Barbara Coombs; great-great-great-great-granddaughters of Samuel Magruder and Sarah Beall, and great-great-great-great-great-granddaughters of Alexander Magruder the Immigrant.

DUFFIE WILLIS MACGREGOR
April 12, 1879—May 11, 1945

MRS. DUFFIE WILLIS MCGREGOR

By JUDGE THOMAS HENRY MCGREGOR

Mrs. Duffie Willis McGregor, beloved wife of Judge Thomas Henry McGregor departed this life and went home to be with Jesus and all her loved ones that had preceded her on May 11th, 1945, from Little Rock, Arkansas, where she had made her home with her husband since October 1938. Prior to that time they had made their home in Shreveport and Rayville, Louisiana, the latter being her childhood home and the place where she and her husband first met and were married. She was the daughter of the late John W. Willis, Sr. and Mrs. Rosa B. Willis of Rayville. Her body was taken to Shreveport and interred in Greenwood Cemetery, on the same street with the family home and less than two blocks away.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Thomas Henry McGregor, Jr., General Counsel for the National Surety Corporation at Memphis, Tennessee and Major Malcolm Parker McGregor, also a lawyer, who holds a responsible position in The War Department at Washington, D. C. She was a devout member of the Baptist Church and wherever she was she always engaged in its activities. Besides her church work she was also active in civic and social affairs. In Rayville she was principally responsible for the organization of The Baptist Missionary Society and The Lambda Kappa Club. She was also President of the Fifth District of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and was the author of the "Standard of Civic Excellence" which received the commendation and approval of the State Health Board and attracted attention in other states.

In Shreveport she was elected a member of Hypatia, the oldest and most exclusive club of that city, and for many years was an active member of that organization. Before the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment she was the Secretary of the Shreveport Suffrage Club and took an active part in the campaign for its adoption. In Little Rock she took an active interest in the Second Baptist Church, the Woman's Missionary Society and the Sunday School. She was a member of the Woman's City Club and of the Little Rock Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The following is an extract from a beautiful tribute to her memory written by the Editor of the Richland Beacon News, at Rayville:

"Mrs. McGregor was a leader in church work everywhere she made her home, being a consecrated member of the Baptist Church since early life. She was also foremost in civic work in the communities that were fortunate to claim her citizenship, and in the sacredness of her home she gave of her love and talent to make it a sanctuary for those nearest and dearest to her great heart.

"One more life filled with love and adoration is now a blessed memory, and a truly devoted wife, affectionate mother and sincere friend, who with Christian charity and sincere faithfulness discharged all the duties of life, has reached the journey's end. Her heart went out to all the wretched and unfortunate in this world, and while she made preparation for her own future in the Paradise to come, she also cared for the tomorrow of others, giving generously of her utmost thought and valuable time and helpful sympathy.

"Her family and the communities that have shared her life are poorer to-day because of her leave-taking, but to them is left the blessed memory of her active and generous life."

She is gone but not forgotten. We would not call her back from that land of bliss if we could. There was always a smile on her face and a song in her heart and on her lips. She is now a member of the Heavenly choir joining her voice with the angels and all the saints in glory. We miss her beautiful face and the companionship of her sweet spirit so! Every day our hearts exclaim:

"But O for the touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is still!"

WARREN KEECH MAGRUDER

By EDWARD B. PASSANO

Warren Keech Magruder was born February 8, 1877; he died April 15, 1944. On January 11, 1913, he married Mary Dorsey Mitchell. Their only child is Warren A. E. Magruder.

I have been asked to write this sketch of Warren Magruder because I have known him so long and so well. I am his cousin. I am fifteen years his senior. I was named after his father, my mother's youngest brother, so I knew him all his life, as a child, as a lad, but most intimately during his years of maturity when our friendship developed into a companionship.

I golfed with him ; I fished with him ; I played cards with him, and was with him in other pastimes. Warren always played hard, and to win, but I have never known him to be critical of his partner or his opponents in any game. His manner was always pleasant and courteous even under most trying circumstances. I have never known him to take an unfair advantage. He was a good sportsman at all times.

Warren was as tenacious as a bull terrier. He fought hard and to the end, in his play and in his work, but it was always with a smile.

He made his mark in a number of fields. He won the Maryland Championship in tennis both singles and doubles in 1913. He was elected a member of the Executive and of the Ranking Committees of the National Lawn Tennis Association.

When his age slowed him down a bit in tennis he took up golf, and developed from a mediocre golfer to one of the best golfers of the State. He won the Senior Championship in 1939.

He played chess, and I am told, played it well. He was devoted to duck shooting and spent many days during the season in the blind, and usually came home with his quota. He was an ardent surf-fisherman and I have had many a happy day with him on the beach.

These characteristics which were so evident in his play were likewise present in his business relations. Business to him was a game and he played it as he would any other game. As general agent for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company for fifteen years he was the captain of his team and leader of his agents. He was not a driver of men, but he set a pretty stiff pace for them to follow. He was one of the best general agents of his company. He was elected President of the Baltimore Life Underwriters' Association and was for years an active member of the Research Agencies. This association was made up of representatives of the leading life insurance companies of the country. They met periodically to discuss and develop methods and technique of selling life insurance. The memorial sent to his widow after his death signed by every member of the Association from every part of the country testifies the affection and esteem in which he was held by his associates.

In World War I, he enlisted as a private in Battery A, Maryland Field Artillery in June, 1916. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant December 10, 1918, and discharged from the Service at Camp Zachary Taylor December 12, 1918, with rank of Second Lieutenant (FA) R.

Warren was by nature an extrovert; he liked people. His acquaintanceship was very broad and his friends were numerous. He was a member of the Maryland Club, the Merchant's Club, and the Baltimore Country Club, of which he was a member of the Board of Governors.

In addition to his membership in the American Clan Gregor he was a member of the Maryland Society of Colonial Wars, the Maryland Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was past president, and a member of the Board of the Southern Maryland Society. For many years he was interested in the problems of child welfare and served on the Board of the Henry Watson Childrens' Aid Society.

Warren Magruder was successful in his business career. He came up the hard way. By hard work and straight shooting he established a position in Baltimore not only in the sphere of his business activities but in civic affairs as well as in the field of sports. He was never too busy to take on some other person's problem if he were called upon to do so. He set a high standard of accomplishment in all his activities and made good.

He was the type of man that fought until he was on his knees and continued to fight on his knees until he got back on his feet again.

I recall one instance that was so characteristic of him that I will cite it. He was in the hospital during his last illness. He was interested in straightening out a friend's application for membership in one of the clubs, which had gone awry. He called on me to straighten it out if possible. I took an active interest in the case and was able to accomplish results, and when I reported to him he was really dying in the hospital and his face brightened up with pleasure.

He had one weakness—if you would call it such. He took everything so seriously and put so much into it that at times you might say he took himself too seriously. But even that might be termed a good fault.

Genealogy: Warren Keach Magruder was the son of Edward Boteler Magruder and Annie May Keach; grandson of Thomas Jefferson Magruder and Sarah Peyton Boteler; great-grandson of Edward Magruder and Thersa Barron; great-great-grandson of Haswell Magruder and Charity Beall; great-great-great-grandson of Samuel Magruder and Jane Haswell; great-great-great-grandson of Samuel Magruder, II and Eleanor Wade; great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Samuel Magruder and Sarah Beall; and great-great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Alexander Magruder, the Immigrant.

*C. C. Magruder says Samuel Magruder 1st was never a Colonel. Registrar, 1946.

Alexander Beall was a landed proprietor. His name appears in many official papers in Calvert and Prince Georges' Counties. He, with other county officials signed, July 30, 1695, a congratulatory address to King William, felicitating him upon his escape from assassination. This address was headed "Civil Officers and Magistrates of Prince Georges' County." (Md. Arch., Vol. 20, Folio 546.)

Alexander Beall married Elizabeth Coombes, daughter of Enoch Coombes, and his wife Barbara, who came from England to St. Mary's Co., Md., 1664.

John Beall, the son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Coombes) Beall, was born 1688, and died May 1, 1742. He was an extensive land owner and vestryman. He was an executor of the will of Sarah (Beall) Magruder, 1734, mother of his wife Verlinda who, died in 1745. Their son,

4. Samuel Beall, Jr., Colonel, eldest child, was born in 1713; died in Washington Co., 1778. (Will, Liber A, folio 12, Washington Co., 1774 probated 1778.)

4. Samuel Beall, Jr., in 1774, was on committee to carry out the resolves of the American Continental Congress in Frederick Co., in 1775, on Committee of Observation and Delegate to Annapolis from Frederick Co., also member of Association of Freemen, Jan. 1, 1776. Samuel Beall, Jr., was commissioned Colonel, Second Battalion of Militia, Frederick Co., member Council of Safety; Judge of Orphans' Court, Nov. 23, 1765. Samuel Beall, Jr., was one of the twelve Judges at Frederick City who repudiated the Stamp Act, his name appearing on a tablet erected in the Frederick County Court House. "Commemorative of the Courage and devotion to duty of the twelve illustrious Justices of the Frederick County Court 1765, whose names it bears."

On May 23, 1734, Samuel Beall, Jr., married Eleanor Brooke, born March 7, 1718, daughter of Thomas Brooke, Esq., and his wife Lucy (Smith) Brooke, and great-great-grand-daughter of Robert Brooke, Esq., and his first wife Mary (Baker) Brooke, whom he married Feb. 25, 1627, (daughter of Thomas Baker, Esq., of "Battle", County Sussex, England, descendant of John Baker who was granted Arms by Edward 3rd, 1327, and his wife Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Engham, Knight, of Goodneston, in Kent.)

Robert Brooke was the son of Thomas Brooke, born at Whitchurch, Co. Hampshire, 1561, graduate of Oxford, B.A., 1584; member Parliament from Whitchurch, 1604-1611. He was son of Richard Brooke, a wealthy banker, who in 1552, married Elizabeth Twyne, a descendant of Sir Bryan Twyne, who bore the Arms of the Twyne family.

The wife of Thomas Brooke was Susan Forster, daughter of Thomas Forster, Knight.

The Forsters were a branch of the ancient family of Etherstone, County Durham and Northumberland, grandsons of Alexander Cumyn, Earl of Buchan, descendants of Saire de Quincey, Earl of Winchester, Magna Charta Baron, and King David of Scotland.

Robert Brooke, "Lordly Councillor and honored scion of titled English houses," emigrated to America and arrived in Maryland 30th June, 1650, in his own ship, with his second wife Mary, ten children and twenty-eight servants. He settled at De La Brooke Manor on the Patuxent river, Charles Co.

He and his sons Baker and Thomas took the oath of fidelity to the Proprietary, July 22, 1650. He was acting Governor, member of the Council, commander of Charles County until 1654.

"Although Robert Brooke lived only five years after coming to Maryland, he left a lasting impression upon the history of his day."

He died 20th July, 1655.

The eldest son of Robert and Mary (Baker) Brooke, his first wife, was Baker Brooke, who married Ann Calvert, daughter of Governor Leonard Calvert and grand-daughter of the first Lord Baltimore.

Their second son was Major Thomas Brooke (through whom the line of descent continues), who became prominently identified with the official and military life of Calvert County. He died in 1676, having married Eleanor Hatton, "she being a lady of high social position", born in England in 1642, daughter of Richard and Margaret Hatton and niece of Thomas Hatton, the distinguished Secretary of the Province.

As the widow of Major Brooke, she married Col. Henry Darnell, of Portland Manor, brother-in-law of Lord Baltimore.

"Like other families of note and rank which came into the Province of Maryland, and helped to mold its history, the Hattons for generations married and inter-married with the best blood of the land, and no name was more distinguished for patriotism, fidelity, and stanch loyalty, than that borne by the Hatton's of England and Maryland."

Continuing with the line of descent through the Brooke family, the son of Major Thomas and Eleanor (Hatton) Brooke was

Colonel Thomas Brooke, born 1659; married Anne
He was Colonel of Militia, member of the Council 1692-1701, and 1715-1724; Judge of the High Court of Admiralty, 1694; Deputy Secretary of Maryland, 1695; Acting Governor; President of the Council, 1720. This distinguished official practically filled every office in the gift of the King, Queen and the Royal Governor.

The son of Colonel Thomas and Anne Brooke was Thomas Brooke, Esq., of "Brookfield", Prince Georges' County. (Prince George was formed from Calvert, 1695,) was born in 1683. He was a member of the Maryland Assembly, 1713; High Sheriff, 1731-1734. He married, May 9, 1705, Lucy Smith, daughter of Colonel Walter Smith and his wife, Rachel (Hall) Smith.

Colonel Walter Smith was born in 1655, the son of Richard Smith and his wife Eleanor.

Richard Smith came to Maryland in 1649 and settled on St. Leonards' Creek, Calvert County. He was a lawyer and his name frequently appears in the records of the Provincial Court. He was commissioned Attorney General of the Province 1657, holding office until 1660, and was a member of the Assembly from 1660 to 1667. He was a landed proprietor, owner of "Hallscroft," Calvert County, and other estates.

Walter Smith, Colonel, son of Richard and Eleanor Smith, as mentioned above, was a member of the Assembly for Calvert Co., 1696 to 1704, and 1708 to 1711, and made Presiding Justice of Calvert County Court, May 10, 1699; member of the Quorum, 1696-1697.

He was Captain 1689, Major 1695, and Colonel 1706, Calvert County Militia.

He was vestryman of All Saints Parish, Calvert Co., from 1696 until his death in 1711.

His wife Rachel, whom he married in 1686 was the daughter of Richard Hall, and his wife Elizabeth.

Richard Hall, born in England, was an early settler on the Octarara River in Maryland, and is believed to have patented a tract of land called "Mt. Welcome" in what is now Cecil County, in 1640. His dwelling house was built of brick brought from England and landed from scows at the mouth of the Octarara.

Richard Hall was Burgess from Calvert County, 1666-70, to 1674-85. He was commissioned for laying out Ports and Towns in Calvert Co. A record says 'Mr. Richard Hall, sent to Upper House, 1678.'

It was with Richard Hall that our ancestor Ninian Beall, served five years, this servitude being imposed upon him as a prisoner of war. Liber 2, folio 195, Maryland Land Office has the following record, 16th Jan., 1667:

"Then came Ninian Beall of Calvert Co., Planter, and proved right to fifty acres of land for his time of service performed with Richard Hall, of same county."

"This servitude which came to Ninian Beall, through the fortunes of war, was an honor. The principle for which he fought finally triumphed in the overthrow of Cromwell. His servitude was a halo of martyrdom for a principle which was honorable. Although he had many chances of escape from servitude after reaching Maryland, the instincts of a gentleman and a soldier promoted him to not only honourably and gracefully submit to the fortunes of war, but at the same time by so doing, to gain the respect and confidence of the people of Maryland to such a degree that they showered continuous honors upon him to the day of his death."

The wife of Richard Hall was Elizabeth Wingfield. In 1686, their daughter, Rachel Hall married Colonel Walter Smith. She died Oct. 28, 1730. Their daughter, Lucy Smith, married Thomas Brooke, Esq., and as previously mentioned, their daughter Eleanor Brooke married Colonel Samuel Beall, Jr., the line of descent continuing through their son,

5. Daniel Beall, born in Maryland 1752. He enlisted, 1776, in the 4th Va., Infantry, of which Regiment his Brother Isaac Beall, was Captain and later Major. Daniel Beall married Martha Peyton, of Virginia, descendant of Major Robert Peyton, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Yelverton) Peyton, of Rougham, County Norfolk, England.

Major Robert Peyton, scion of an ancient family, came from Norfolk Co., England, to Gloucester Co., Virginia, ante 1679. He named his estate "Isleham", after the Peyton estate in England. He was Major of Gloucester County troops, 1680.

With the tide of immigration after the close of the Revolutionary War, Daniel Beall and his wife Martha (Peyton) Beall, removed with their family to the state of Georgia and settled in the new county of Franklin. The name of Daniel Beall, Esq., is found on many official records in the Georgia Archives. The daughter of Daniel and Martha (Peyton) Beall,

6. Clarissa Beall, born in Virginia 1783, was married in Franklin Co., Ga., 1798, to Dudley Jones, son of Russell Jones, Revolutionary soldier from North Carolina, and his wife Sarah, who settled after the Revolution in Franklin County.

Russell Jones, a Lieutenant in the Revolutionary War was Colonel commanding Franklin Co. Militia, 1793. He was member Georgia House of Representatives, 1793, and of the Senate, 1796.

The daughter of Dudley and Clarissa (Beall) Jones,

7. Harriet Beall Jones, was born in Franklin County, Ga., Oct. 1, 1819.

On Dec. 13, 1835, she was married to William Floyd Bush, son of William Bush and his wife, Joice King.

William Bush was born in Virginia July 22, 1786, the son of Daniel Thomas Bush, Revolutionary soldier, and his wife Elizabeth (Freeman) Bush, born in Virginia 1755, who settled in Franklin Co., Ga., after the Revolutionary War.

AULD-MacGREGOR

By LULU GRAY AULD

According to tradition, a MacGregor married an Auld and took the name of Auld when that of MacGregor was proscribed, but kept his arms.

In a letter (1938) from Sir Malcolm MacGregor, hereditary Chief of Clan MacGregor, he subscribes to the same theory supporting this tradition. Burke's General Armory ascribes the MacGregor arms to the family of Auld as follows: "Argent on a mount vert, a tree pierced through in bend by a sword proper, upon the point a crown. Crest: A lion's head erased." Motto: "E'en do bait spair nocht." Another Motto: "S'Rioghail mo dhream." Slogan: "Ard Choille."

In answer to a letter of inquiry for further information on the MacGregor-Auld arms, Longman and Strongitharm, London, Eng., (engravers to his Majesty, the King) state that the fact that the MacGregor arms are ascribed by Burke to the family of Auld would appear to indicate they were a cadet branch of Clan MacGregor.

GENEALOGY:

I. James¹ Auld, of St. Michael's River, Talbot Co., Md. b. in Scotland 1665, member of Clan MacGregor and used the MacGregor arms; d. in Talbot Co., Md., 1721 (See Will). Emigrated to Md. at the age of nineteen or twenty. In 1685 possessed land in Talbot Co., Md., jointly with Edward Elliott whose daughter, Sarah, he married (Land Rec., Md. Hist. Soc.). Edward Elliott donated the land for the Parish Church around which the town of St. Michaels (Tal. Co., Md.) grew. "Sharon", in St. Michaels, was an Auld-Elliott home for many generations. Sarah, widow of James Auld, married secondly, William Lambodin.

Issue of James Auld and Sarah Elliott: James, John, Sarah, Margaret, and Elizabeth who married John Lowe, Jr. of Grafton Manor, Talbot Co., Md. Both John and Elizabeth Auld are ancestors of this writer (Lulu Gray Auld) through intermarriage of their descendants. (See Lowe Genealogy in Amer. Clan Gregor Soc. Year Book—1941).

II. *John*² Auld, b. in Tal. Co., Md., Jan. 9, 1702; d. July 22, 1766, Churchwarden of St. Michaels Parish, inherited "Newport-Glasgow" which became a part of "Martingham Enlarged" when his daughter, Mary, married William Hambleton, son of William Hambleton and Sarah Watkins, daughter of John Watkins, II, and Alice Lloyd, daughter of Col. Edward Lloyd who married, as his second wife, Frances, widow of John Watkins, I. (Relationship involved: Edward Lloyd's stepson, John Watkins, II, became his son-in-law).

William Hambleton; (See above).

Issue of James Auld and Rosannah Piper; James, Anne, John, Rosannah (mentioned above), Michael, Mary, and Elizabeth. This writer has copy of an interesting letter written one hundred years ago (dated Dec. 31, 1845) by Henry William Harrington (descendant of General Henry William Harrington and Rosannah Auld) to his cousin, Henry H. Goldsborough, of Easton, Tal. Co., Md.

John² Auld's sons, John and Daniel, members of Troop of Horse, Capt. William Webb Haddaway's Co., Col. Mil., 1744-'48 (Md. Hist. Mag.), and his sons, Edward, Philemon, and Lieut. Hugh Auld (mentioned above) served in Revolutionary War. His eldest son, James Auld, married Rosannah Piper Goldsborough, daughter of Rev. Michael Piper, an Episcopal Clergyman, and widow of Howes Goldsborough, son of Robert and Elizabeth Greenbury Goldsborough. In 1765 James Auld removed to Halifax County, North Carolina, where one of his daughters, Rosannah Auld, married Gen. Henry William Harrington who rendered distinguished service under General Green in the Revolution. (See Southern Hist. Asso.)

Rosannah Piper (Goldsborough) Auld, through her daughter by her first marriage, Caroline Goldsborough (who married her cousin, John Goldsborough, son of John and Ann Turbutt Goldsborough) became the grandmother of John, Hawes, Robert, and Elizabeth (Twins born April 1, 1775), Matthew and Samuel (Twins) Charles and Horatio Goldsborough.

About 1828 or '30, he came to Virginia where he died Oct. 25, 1861; m. Dec. 25, 1831, Harriet Elizabeth Watkins, b. Feb. 15, 1805; d. Nov. 10, 1871, daughter of William Watkins and Martha Bowe, both of Hanover Co., Va., and both children of soldiers of War of Revolution, Martha Bowe being also a descendant of two of the Huguenot Founders of Manakin, Virginia; Cornelius Dabney and Rev. Peter Fontaine, B. A.

Issue of *Edward*⁵ Auld and Harriet Elizabeth Watkins: Oscar, b. Nov. 12, 1833, d. young; William Watkins, b. Sept. 24, 1835, d. Dec. 31, 1877; m. July 21, 1856, Elizabeth Ellen Hazelgrove; Thomas Jefferson, b. July 4, 1838, of whom further; Joseph Henry, b. June 4, 1841, unmarried; Robert James, b. Jan. 6, 1845, d. young.

A retiring man of broad culture, he was a student of architecture, and besides his books, loved ships and birds and trees. He was an authority on the trees of Virginia. He married Nov. 12, 1863, Annie Eliza Lyons Hazelgrove, b. in Hanover Co., Va., Feb. 21, 1842; d. in Danville, Va., Feb. 15, 1922, daughter of William Hazelgrove and Ann Sims Oliver, both of Hanover Co., Va. On her paternal side, Annie E. L. Hazelgrove was of Huguenot ancestry through descent from Thomas and Elizabeth Perrin, living on Sarah's Creek, Gloucester Point, Va., in 1685. In full view of Yorktown still stands the old Perrin mansion, a brick structure in good state of preservation. An interesting item in Perrin genealogy is the marriage of Susannah Perrin Holden, widow, and Col. Samuel Washington, brother of Gen. George Washington. Issue: a son, John Perrin Washington.

Annie E. L. Hazelgrove was also a lineal descendant of Col. Robert Beverley, Jr., one of Gov. Alexander Spotswood's "Knights of the Golden Horseshoe", and of Col. William Byrd, I, of Virginia, who married Mary Horsmanden, a lady of ancient and distinguished lineage, embracing royal lines.

In the American Clan Gregor Society Year Book, 1926-27, pages 28-32, Miss Juliet Hite Gallaher gives the descent of Alpin, King of the Scots, from Adam and Eve. Mary Horsmanden, wife of Col. William Byrd I, being a descendant of King Alpin, Miss Gallaher (a good friend of this writer) has carried this lady's lineage back to its ancient origin, giving her descent from Alpin's eldest son and heir, Kenneth, King of Scotland (d. 854 A.D.), brother of Gregor, Founder of Clan Alpin, or Clan MacGregor, as it was afterwards called, thus conferring upon all of Mary Horsmanden Byrd's descendants eligibility for membership in the American Clan Gregor Society.

Lack of space precludes publishing Mary Horsmanden Byrd's ancient line in this number of the year Book, so only Annie E. L. Hazelgrove's direct descent from her is given as follows: Col. William Byrd I, of Virginia, m. Mary Horsmanden; Ursula Byrd, m. Col. Robert Beverley, Jr., "Knight of the Golden Horshoe"; Ursula Beverley, m. John Dudley; Mary Thompson Dudley, m. William Hazelgrove; John Hazelgrove (Sergeant in War of Revo.), m. Ann Timberlake; Josiah Hazelgrove, m. Mildred Tyler; William Hazelgrove, m. Ann Sims Oliver; Annie Eliza Lyons Hazelgrove, m. Thomas Jefferson Auld.

The last named couple being the parents of Lulu Gray Auld and Mrs. Adrian Otis Arvin (Margaret Temple Auld), members of American Clan Gregor Society.

SPEAKING OF PETER H. MAGRUDER

By MARILYN TRACY

Have you ever cornered an old Annapolitan and asked for a tale or two? Someone who was born and raised in the old city and has lived through a fairly long span of its history? If you haven't, you've missed something interesting and worthwhile.

Peter H. Magruder, for instance, would be a marvelous one to choose. He hasn't traveled extensively, in fact he has seldom left Annapolis, but that hasn't been necessary. Annapolis, his hometown, has provided abundant excitement for him. Here, interesting persons and events have sought Peter Magruder, a man of personality and initiative, he hasn't had to seek them.

Peter H. Magruder is the son of the late Emily R. Magruder, the civil war mayor of Annapolis. He has never married and gives as his reason that no one ever proposed to him. He said he always understood that the woman did the proposing.

A direct descent of Francis Scott Key and Joseph H. Nicholson, who selected the music for the lyrics of the National Anthem he has in his possession a photostatic copy of the original revision of the "Star Spangled Banner." The anthem had first been written on an envelope. He sleeps in the room where this original manuscript reposed, unknown, for 47 years. It had been placed in a desk in 1817 in the Nicholson House where it remained until 1845. The desk was then moved to his present home, 114 Duke of Gloucester Street, and the Manuscript was not discovered until 1892 when the legatee took the desk to Baltimore and went through its contents.

In the same room he once kept an historic piece of jade captured by a Marine officer in the siege of Peking. The officer asked Mr. Magruder to place the beautiful piece between two mattresses and save it for him. Later the Chinese government requested the United States to return the priceless piece of jade. It was returned, and afterwards proved to be the great seal of China.

During his 25 years as secretary of the Naval Academy he met many famous men and today continues his acquaintance with celebrities who are naval officers of World War II. Among history's illustrious figures whom he has known he cherishes the memories of chats with Premier Clemenceau, Admiral Beatty of the British Navy, The Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, Cardinal Merceil of Belgium, Queen Mary and Princess Ileana of Roumania.

He had the honor of dining with Mark Twain when the humorist lectured in Annapolis. On that occasion Twain related two ghost stories which Mr. Magruder tells today as his favorites. He met and dined with Marian Crawford and Sinclair Lewis.

His knowledge and appreciation of the Naval Academy and of the city of Annapolis he put to use in seven articles written for the Naval Institute which include "Old Annapolis," "Old Naval Academy," and others on Navy ships and Annapolis homes.

One night many years ago, when airplanes were first introduced to the Naval Academy, Peter Magruder and a Lieutenant Ellyson took a moonlight ride in a Curtis plane. Lieutenant Ellyson wrote to Mr. Curtis about it and soon afterward an answer came stating that they had made the first moonlight flight. A few weeks later they received a picture of the "First Moonlight Flight" that Mr. Curtis had had painted for them.

Peter Magruder has served as Commodore of the Annapolis Yacht Club five times, and has been a member of the club for years. At one time he became an ardent horseman but soon reverted to his lifelong interest, yachts. He is a member of the Naval Academy Officer's Mess and the Annapolis Club, and is vice-president of the Committee for Restoration of Colonial Annapolis. He is also director of the Anne Arundel County Public Library, and director of the Annapolis Banking and Trust Company, and the Annapolis Savings Institute. Peter H. Magruder is a Member of the American Clan Gregor Society.

Peter Magruder's life has been crammed with extraordinary interest and incidents, but the telling of it should rightfully be done by Mr. Magruder in his own sparkling and inimitable style.

MAGRUDER

This county, presumably Montgomery, was settled by a colony of Scotch refugees, adherants of the House of Stuart, who had taken refuge in this Province.

The first court of Montgomery County was held at the house of Leonard Davis (the old Hungerford Tavern) now Miss Mary Russells residence in Rockville on May 20th, 1777. Among those present were Samuel Wade Magruder, Justice Brooke Beall as Clerk and Clement Beall as Sheriff.

Magruder and Bealls "Honesty" contained 1720 acres; and was surveyed for Samuel Magruder and Charles Beall in the year 1730. (Original Grant).

Master Samuel Magruder and Josias Beall and others were commissioned, named and authorized to condemn sixty acres to be added to the town. (Georgetown 1751).

In 1783 a tract of land, "The Rock of Dumbarton", belonging to Thomas Beall, was added to the town.

Mr. Nathan Magruder and Col. Samuel Beall were among those interested in the first County School for the education of poor children.

Lloyd, son of Samuel Wade, inherited "Locust Grove". He went security for his brother George and thus lost a great deal of money, having to pay at one time $30,000 for bond.

Lloyd Magruder and Lloyd Nalie were named for Governor Lloyd of Maryland. Whether or not he was a relative is not known.

Patrick Magruder son of Samuel Wade was the second member of Congress from his district: was clerk to the Senate, and was Librarian to Congress from 18— to 18—. During the time of his campaign for Congress, he is said to have had a white bull decorated with oranges and ribbons driven through his district. He was educated at Princeton. His bridal expenses cost in the neighborhood of $8,000. He drove a carriage and four and had lace curtains that cost $1,000 a pair.

George Beall Magruder son of Samuel Wade was educated at Princeton. He became a shipping merchant of such great wealth that it was said he could have paved the streets of Georgetown with gold. At his entertainments he paid as much as $600 for the music. He was accustomed to drive with his family to the Springs of Virginia.

Warren Magruder, son of Samuel Wade, lived in great style; was a planter, keeping butler and overseer.

Charles Brooke, son of Lloyd was Teller in a bank in Little Rock at twenty.

Thomas Contee, son of Samuel Wade, was a Captain in the Navy. His wife was a Miss Mary Ann Magruder. Her sister married a Perry. Between "Fair View" and Potomac lived in 1895 a Ninian Magruder Perry.

Samuel Wade Magruder, "Lower District of Frederick Co., Comm. of Safety, July 26, 1776.

In the neighborhood known as the Wallace or Magruder neighborhood the Rev. James Hunt had his school "Tusculium."

COMMANDER DRANE'S SQUADRON "NINE" BACK IN STATES

Article contributed by Commander Drane's Aunt, Miss Myrtle Drane
From The Nashville Banner, Tenn., Aug. 6, 1945

The Navy's Composite Squadron "NINE," led to fame in the Atlantic by Commander William M. Drane, U.S.N. of Clarksville, Tennessee, is back in the United States for leave and reassignment after 73 days of operations in the rigorous Okinawa campaign.

In the Atlantic, where Commander Drane was one of its two skippers, "NINE" was twice winner of the coveted Presidential Unit Citation. Commander Drane was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal by his own country and by the British with the British Distinguished Service Cross.

Based aboard escort carriers of the BOGUE and CASABLANCA Classes, the WILDCAT fighters and AVENGER torpedo-bombers of NINE sank four U-boats in the Atlanta, and probably sank five and damaged five others in 33 attacks during 10 hours of combat flying.

"NINE's" principal mission at Okinawa was close support. This involved low-level flying over the enemy's front lines, where anti-aircraft fire was intense, to pin-point bombs, rockets and bullets on obstacles as close ahead of the advancing infantry as 200 yards.

Among the destruction confirmed by "NINE" at Okinawa were 29 buildings, 12 troop concentrations, four barracks, 18 trucks, 9 supply dumps, 5 parked planes, 2 bridges, two radio stations, a power plant and a factory.

Installations damaged but not eliminated by these pin-point attacks included 17 buildings, 15 barracks, 7 parked planes, 7 trucks, 5 warehouses, 3 radio towers, 3 command posts, 2 factories and a munitions dump.

"NINE" flew more than 2,100 combat sorties (one combat flight by one plane), involving more than 8,000 hours in the air at Okinawa, when it was based aboard one of the Kaiser-built CASABLANCA-Class escort carriers.

"NINE" operated in the Atlantic from January, 1943, to November, 1944. Ports in Argentina, Belfast, Casablanca, Recife, Rio de Janeiro and Bermuda were visited during this period. NINE's carriers escorted convoys and were members of task groups which hunted down and destroyed U-boats.

"NINE" sustained losses in both theaters of action. Seven pilots were lost in the Atlantic. Three pilots and two aircrewmembers did not return from the Okinawa campaign and are listed as "killed" or "missing in action".

Statistics tell something of the extent of much-traveled "NINE's" operations. Since its commissioning in August, 1942, it has flown more than 33,000 hours and made more than 5,700 carrier landings.

At Okinawa it expended more than 375,000 pounds of bombs, 2,750 rockets and 230,000 rounds of 50-caliber machine gun ammunition. Some of the damage inflicted by this ammunition has been listed above but no estimate is possible of the damage done gun positions, trenches, mortar pens by "NINE's" low-level, pin-point attacks.

CAPTURE OF THE "ODENWALD"

Copy of a letter written by Lieut. Thomas A. Gregg, U.S.S. "Omaha"

November 19, 1941

Mailed at San Juan, P. R.

DEAR DAD:

By now you are undoubtedly aware of our little escapade of a couple of weeks ago. Since the story is all over the front pages of the newspapers, I guess there is no harm in giving a few of the details. The press account that I saw was reasonably accurate. We had heard a QQQ call from a ship being shelled by a raider and had spent a day of fast stemming to see if we could find any survivors. After scouting the area and seeing nothing, we proceeded on our way. As dawn broke the next day we saw a ship just on the horizon and went over to investigate her.

She was a motorship and was flying the American flag and had an American flag painted on each side of the bridge. We approached her cautiously and told her to hoist her international call. She complied and identified herself as the "Willmote" of Philadelphia. She had that name painted on each bow and on the stern. She did not answer our signals well. The Captain circled her once and looked her over carefully and was just about to pass her by and proceed on our way when he decided to look her over again.

We circled her again and took a closer look. A combination of several things made us suspicious. For one thing, the book listed the Willmote as having been built at Hog Island and she didn't look like a Hog Islander. The flags on the bridge were painted on canvass and hung over the side. She had a stern anchor of a type not generally carried by U. S. Merchantmen. So the Captain circled her a third time and came close aboard. She said she was bound from Capetown to New Orleans. We hailed her and asked what cargo she carried, being unable to ascertain that by her signals. A foreign sounding voice answered, "General cargo."

The Captain then decided to board her and have a look, so we lowered a boat and sent over a boarding party, Lieutenant Carmichael and twelve of toughest petty officers on the ship armed with .45 automatic pistols and Thompson Sub-Machine Guns, to see if she were really an American ship.

When we started to lower the boat and told her to heave to, we were surprised to see signs of unusual activity on the "Willie from Phillie" as she later became affectionately known.

The crew started to swing out her boats and she sent over a signal meaning, "I am abandoning ship, send boats for passengers." A few moments later two explosions were heard and two puffs of smoke came from her stack. The crew then lowered the boats and pulled away from her. As they were going over, our boarding party was going aboard on the sea ladders they conveniently put over the side. The Germans were in such a hurry to leave that two of them dived over the side and swam to the boats.

Before they left, one man hoisted the Nazi flag on her flagstaff, I found out later that he did it with a big Puerto Rican watertender named Coronado holding a gun at his back.

The Germans lay off in their lifeboats to watch her sink, but they never had that opportunity. Our boarding party immediately went to the engine room which they found full of smoke and could not enter. In the meantime, we assembled our fire and rescue party and sent them over in our motor sailer. When they arrived with rescue breathing apparatus, the engine room was entered and it was found that dynamite had been set off in the shaft alley aft of the engine room and the watertight door leading to the engine room was open. Also two manhole covers had been removed from the bulkhead separating the two spaces. However, they had been taken off hurriedly and were left on the deck complete with butterfly nuts and it was a short job to replace them and close the door thus isolating the compartment which was flooding rapidly.

The ship was searched carefully for more explosives and plenty were found that did not go off. Cans of benzine for firing the ship were also found. For the next two weeks our crew aboard her kept finding bombs in out of the way corners.

It was found that there was a leak in one of the holds where some explosives had gone off and that the starboard shaft alley already mentioned seemed to have been the only damage. The ship had stopped sinking and, although she had a bad list to starboard, she didn't seem to be going any farther, so they set about working on the engines.

That was quite a job. All our men were steam engineers and she had oil engines. All valves and lines and electric leads were labeled in German which no one could read. Therefore, they all had to be traced out before they were touched as no one could be sure they wouldn't set off more explosives. After a day's work, our men got her underway at about sunset. In my opinion, that was quite an accomplishment.

While all this was going on, we stood by and took the German crew aboard. We doubled up our rooms and put the officers in officers' country and the crew in the after engineers' space. Of course we kept them under armed guard, but they received very good treatment. The officers ate in ward-room and the crew ate off the general mess. We gave them a spot topside to get air and in general made it as pleasant as possible under the circumstances. At first we thought the ship was probably a submarine tender but investigations showed her to be the ODENWALD out of Hamburg bound from Yokohama to some French port with a cargo of 3,000 tons of crude rubber, some 4,000 Goodrich eight-ply heavy truck tires, copper, brass, hair, wool, wheat, and peanuts. She was unarmed and had been in Yokohama since the start of the war.

The officers all spoke English well, we soon found out, although on that first day whenever we asked them a question they just shrugged their shoulders and said nothing.

The "Odenwald" would make only nine knots, so we headed north with her at nine knots for a U. S. port. It took us approximately fourteen days.

The men on the "Odenwald" deserve commendation for a job well done and have already received one from Ernie and Jonas ("Ernie" is Admiral King.)

In correcting the list, they had quite a job but did it very neatly. The pumps to the shaft alley could not be made to work as they had been damaged. However, the pumps in the engine room worked well, so they loosened the man-hole covers and allowed the water to drain into the engine room bilges and then pumped it out from there and were able to keep ahead of the leak.

The Germans had a very complete arrangement for sinking the ship and setting her afire, but it did not work because :

1. The Japanese explosives were of inferior quality.
2. They did not carry out all their measures because they were in too great a hurry to leave the ship, thinking she would sink immediately.
3. Our men got aboard and worked too fast for them.

They had a good bunch of officers aboard and some of them seemed happy about going to the United States. One thing is certain, they receive much better food here than they had aboard. Their Captain, Gerhardt Loers, is a man in his fifties and rather heavy set. Most of the other officers are young, except the chief engineer. They had two first officers, one of whom was a very smooth, well-mannered man who spoke excellent English. We are convinced that he is either a German Naval Officer or the Gestapo man aboard. He joined the ship just before she sailed while the others were with her from the time she left Germany.

The assistant engineer, Willie Siedel, was a very likable man and I'm afraid we put him on a spot. We sent him back to the "Odenwald" to see if he could be made to help start the engines. He gave no assistance knowingly, but all the rest of them, especially Hans Hermann Schmidt, the smooth first officer, think he helped us. The Captain defends him, however, so that puts the Captain on a spot too, although he was on one anyway. They both have families in Germany. If we had realized soon enough what we were doing, we would never have made Willie go back over there because we could have started the engines without him.

They had come all the way from Yokohama, having left there the end of August and they had not been in sight of land. They went around the Horn going away south and then came up the middle of the Atlantic. In the Pacific, they were disguised as a Japanese ship and they changed to the Willmoto after they rounded the Horn. If they had picked any other nationality than American, they would probably have made port, or at least have gone as far as the British blockade.

As to the legal technicalities, we very clearly have rights under the laws of salvage as they were abandoning ship when we came aboard. We had a right to board her because she flew our flag. I don't know what the Captain would have done if she hadn't attempted to scuttle.

Tomorrow we shall be rid of her. We are turning her over to the United States Marshall here and we have already turned the officers and crew over to the Army, although I don't see where they come into the picture. However, that's the order so we shall see.

THE WORK AND PLAY SCHOOL BY-THE-ROADSIDE A JULY CHRISTMAS TREE? WELL WHY NOT?

Barrels of Good Things Enjoyed at Delaney During Postponed Event

Did you ever attend a Christmas tree in July?

Did you ever see a barrel of stockings, a barrel of neckties, a bushel of buttons of a 150 pound sugar sack filled with costume jewelry?

At the "Fourth of July Christmas Tree" held at the Work and Play School by-the-roadside, these things were in evidence this week. One who attended writes:

"There was no Christmas tree on December 25, 1938 as the school supervisor was in the east. It would never do for a year to pass without its Christmas and especially when accumulated gifts only waited to be distributed.

"From the Oak Grove school in Vassalboro, Maine, the girls had sent costume jewelry, fancy bozes, gay sweaters and dresses no longer considered the last minute in style. Dolls from Cleveland. Something over 1,200 pounds of every kind of household articles one could name, came in from Dallas, and San Antonio was not far behind. Junior Red Cross girls and boys from six of the largest schools in Toledo had collected the bushel of buttons, and other things in proportion. Washington, D. C., Colorado, Idaho, Long Island, Boston, and our home town of Fayetteville, all had Christmas representatives of good will for the great day.

"A great sack was filled with clothing, pie tins, cups, pictures, vases, everything one might like in a home.

"Women came for their sacks from the other side of Combs, across the river from Asher, Pinnacle, Thorney, in another direction from Thompson and Cannons Creek, and from over the mountains from Greasy Creek, Possum Creek and Health.

"Every woman had a draw at the jewelry sack. Children came in droves. The tiny tots were held in their parents arms while they leaned over a great box to pull out a beribboned package with a rag doll, toy elephant, dog or perhaps a giraffe. The little girls passed in a long line around a huge sack filled with dolls that had been dressed from booties to the latest modes in hats, by the Business Girls Club of the Cleveland Boulevard Presbyterian Church.

"Girls and boys of the next older edition, passed by the 'Grab Barrel' wit games, belts, vanity cases, and sometimes nothing more than a little U. S. Flag or a pencil but they all seemed glad they had come."

Mrs. Mary Magruder Guilbeau was determined that just because she was out of the state in December, that the 100 or more people whom she tries to serve in her vicinity should not go without. It took six months to collect the gifts from hither and yon and to make ready for the event.

Mrs. Mary Magruder Guilbeau, L.L., A.B., M.A., has school teaching in her blood. Her mother wrote the Magruder History of Louisiana which was used for 16 years in Louisiana schools. Her father was a college professor, and her paternal grandfather founded the first Protestant school for boys in Louisiana. A maternal uncle was the former governor of Louisiana, Henry Fuqua.

With this sort of a background and after being a member of the faculties of Southern Methodist university, Tulane, Louisiana State and other famous colleges and universities, Mary Magruder now heads the Work and Play School By-The-Roadside at Delaney, Arkansas, at a salary of 30 cents an hour, teaching illiterate and under-privileged mountain folk Mother Goose rhymes.

The school is a log cabin which she helped build herself on state highway 16. The chinks in the logs are filled with scrap wood and mud. One of her ultimate goals in addition to teaching the natives Mother Goose stories is to figure up how many tons of mud she lifted in "chinking" that cabin which is her home, her school, and her community library "by-the-roadside".

Seriously, though, Mrs. Guilbeau feels that she is doing a great work. She is doing a more useful work, she believes, than when she was teaching university students and co-eds, in the institutions of higher learning.

Her "pupils" are the poorest, the most unenlightened, and the most forgotten of the hill-folk that she has been able to find in the hills about Delaney, and in the little communities of Possum Creek, Combs, Accident, Crosses, Thompson, Greasy creek. Her work is to teach these people, young and old, a thousand and one things they need to know, and a thousand and one things on top of these.

And yet in teaching them Mrs. Guilbeau is learning much herself. On a blackboard in the main room of her log cabin school-home, for instance, is the following statement, to be read by all visitors: "The most characteristic remark of the mountain people is: 'Better Come Home With Me!' It is the quintessence of hospitality. 'Better Come Home With Me.'"

Only the other day Mrs. Guilbeau staged a "Spring Christmas Tree" for the women and children of the community who are her "charges." Many of the poor folk, some of them little tots under 10 years old, walked five miles to be present at the tree, happy with gifts of clothing, mended toys, and a few trinkets that would bring them pleasure.

One mother of 11 children was there with all her children. The oldest daughter, in her teens, carried the youngest baby. This was one group which walked five miles to the school and five miles back with their presents.

But to get on with the story of how Mrs. Guilbeau came to the mountains to teach the mountaineers about Mother Goose. To begin with, when God made Mary Magruder he made a remarkable woman. She is a graduate of Louisiana State Normal, Louisiana State University and has her M.A. degree from Columbia University. She has taught in all of the state colleges and institutions in Louisiana. She taught short story courses at Tulane and Louisiana State university.

She once taught six weeks in the Tri-County Normal in Mississippi. For three years she taught critique at Louisiana State Normal. She also taught critique at the Industrial school at Lafayette, La.

For two years she was supervisor of the Arkansas State Normal at Conway. She was associate professor of education for a number of years and then became critically ill. She was informed she would never teach again. This message came when she was a widow with two young daughters to support. Her husband was head of the biological department of Louisiana, and was but 26 years old when he died. He left her at that time with a two months old baby and with the other less than two years old. So she had taken care of these two girls alone, for years, when the crash came at Southern Methodist University. She resigned from the faculty, and when health permitted went into the insurance business. For a long time she could work but three hours a day, but she made good money at this—selling fire insurance, as much or more than she had made teaching, until the business fell about her feet as it did about everyone's, along in 1930.

In the meantime her daughters were making their name in the literary and art world. Her youngest daughter, Miss Braxton Guilbeau, received her master's degree from Columbia university, and after a year in Paris, France, began teaching French in the public schools in Cleveland, Ohio. Her other daughter, Honore Guilbeau, after receiving her master's degree from Columbia, married Edmond Vance Cooke, Jr., son of the poet, and is living in Cleveland. She is an artist of note, and she has two paintings on exhibit at the Chicago Art Institute.

With the responsibility of the young girls off her hands, Mrs. Guilbeau at last believed she was at liberty to return to her ambition of long standing, which was, as stated at the beginning of this article, to teach mountain folks the charming stories of Mother Goose. This ambition dated back to the time when she was supervisor of the Arkansas State Normal at Conway, about 1914. She planned an operetta or something of the kind, based on Mother Goose rhymes. To her surprise she discovered that many young men and women enrolled in the school had never heard of the rhymes. Jack jumping over the candle-stick meant nothing to them, neither did Mother Hubbard, her little dog and the bare cupboard. It hurt her deeply, with all of her background of children's lore, of reading, study and enjoyment of poetry and fable from her earliest memories, to realize that young people in the mountain areas could have never heard of Old King Cole and his fiddlers three, of the old woman who lived in a shoe, of the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumping over the moon.

The fact that they did not know these simple little nursery rhymes was significant. It was indicative of that vast extent of all they lacked back in those mountain sections where families lived in log cabins.

So, in 1933, Mrs. Guilbeau and Cherie (Cherie is her Ford roadster) and her trailer loaded with belongings, arrived in Fayetteville. To friends living back in Dallas, it appeared a mad venture. But it wasn't. She headed out along highway 16 to a spot that touched her fancy, about 25 miles southeast of the University city. It was Delaney, Madison County, she settled. She bought two acres of land that would have been foreclosed the very day she arrived, for $80. She called the hill natives around her, told them she had come to teach them, to give them books they would want to read, to instruct them in sewing, in making garments to wear, to teach them handicraft. She gathered around her the very poorest she could find, not those who were farming successfully, not those who had jobs that paid them, but parents of "kidlets" as she calls them who actually were too poor to send their tots to school. And so, with the help of these natives, the Work and Play school by the side of the road came into being. A mountain ravine adjoins her two acre tract. Rugged cliffs and hills are in the background. A mountain is across the valley, beyond White River, toward the north. But she has rose trellises in front of her cabin school, a flower garden adjoining the house, a rustic walk leading to the house, and a great crane-dip well, operated with a 50 foot sassafrass timber, at the rear.

The interior of the house is warmed with fireplaces. She has many antiques, some which she had gathered from the oldest settlers, some which she brought with her. These, and samples of the new handicraft work which she has taught her pupils, are on display. There is a gourd powder horn used in the Revolutionary war. There is a gourd container used for holding coffee, more than 100 years old. There are quilts, showing the finest workmanship, the most difficult patterns, the most perfect seams, which are far more than 100 years old.

FROM MARYLAND TO MANHATTAN

By HERBERT THOMAS MAGRUDER

CHAPTER I—"GLENGYLE"

Although I have been told on the best authority—my mother—that I was not actually born at Glengyle, it was the home of my earliest childhood recollection. Antedating vital statistics in many rural communities, there exists no public record to sustain or disprove the family report that early on the morning of All Saints' Day, as November first is called by the faithful, in the year 1881, aided and abetted by the skillful hands of Dr. Donaldson, operator of an extensive delivery route in and around Baltimore, the stork bestowed upon my expectant parents a plump and very pink present, which upon careful scrutiny proved to be another boy. That in brief is the story of my advent. Being then the proud parents of a three year old son, my brother Hamline, named for a highly esteemed and lately departed uncle, who in turn had been given the name of a revered churchman, it is more than probable that my folks wished for a dear little girl baby daughter. Whatever their disappointment, they bore up bravely, and set about the selection of a name for their second son.

It was my mother's turn to choose a name; and grief over the recent demise of her fond father, James Pentz Thomas, an estimable citizen of Baltimore, led her choice to center on his name. Unwilling however to have me called "Jimmie", she fastened on his family name as the one I should adorn. But the thought of "Tommy" was no less distasteful than "Jimmie", so it was agreed that middle name was to be "Thomas", and another choice made for a first name. Then it was that my father, loyal to a college classmate named "Herbert", who later turned out to be a preacher, advanced the name by which I am known. Etomologically the name means "Glory of the Army", I have been informed. But fortune never sent me into the army; and truth demands the frank acknowledgment that any hope of glory must be deferred until the life hereafter.

And so, when I first saw the light of day, my parents were living in a rented place on Garrison Avenue in the village of Arlington, Baltimore County, Maryland. For my father, born and raised in the city, had succumbed to the yearning for a home in the country, and it was decided to move out of town to the place on Garrison Avenue, while father could look around for a property he wanted to own. To all of this plan my mother acceded none too willingly, I am sure, for she too was city born and bred, and must have had some premonition of the care and cost involved in maintaining a large home in the country. However, all too complacently she gave in; for she was always a dutiful wife, much in love with her dashing young husband.

A wooded tract of land on Pimlico Road extended, as the present Park Heights Avenue was then called, and which bordered on the Seven Mile Lane, was finally selected. The land acquired, my father, a man of ideas to often beyond reasonable realization, set about planning the house. Eight large trees were felled within the area where the excavation for foundation was dug; and in due course a large frame dwelling of fine proportions was erected, into which we moved before the builders moved out. Father had chosen for his home in the country the name "Glengyle", a section of the Scotland home of the MacGregors, described in Sir Walter Scott's "Rob Roy". Thus was the cherished Scottish tradition perpetuated in our Maryland home, which to this day bears the name "Glengyle".

The house at Glengyle still stands, little changed by its successive owners. A broad wide porch sweeps across the East front, rounding to the South side. There is a large central doorway, leading into a vestibule, and thence into an impressive main hall, from which the broad staircase at right and across the rear to the second floor, forming a gallery on which the various bedrooms open. Within the main hall on the main floor came first, on the right, our parlor, a formally furnished, and in my day a forbiddingly cold room, seldom used in Winter. My Mother's grand piano occupied a prominent place in the parlor as did several family portraits and a pair of large dresden china figures which without doubt were family heirlooms. I do not recall that anything else in the furnishing of our parlor was distinguished or memorable.

Directly across the broad hall, also opening through folding door, was a large comfortable room with cheerful fireplace, which we called the library. Today it would be called the living room, for it was veritable that. Comfortable overstuffed leather furniture, a massive walnut bookcase and center table surmounted by an ornate kerosene lamp were outstanding in that room, at the end of which was a large bay window looking out on the porch. In another corner of the library stood the family organ in an elaborately carved cabinet. Regularly on Sunday evenings the family gathered around the organ to sing hymns learned at Sunday School. Often the playing was done by my mother who had had excellent musical training at Peabody Institute. Later playing was shared by "Nee" our beloved maiden cousin, who always lived in my mother's home. But more of her later.

Leaving the library through wide folding doors one entered the dining room, of cheerful south exposure, with a built in latrobe stove. Our dining room furniture was walnut, sturdy and handsome; and it lasted until all the family grew up and scattered. The west wall of the dining room, leaving space only for the pantry door, was filled by a built in china closet of walnut to match the furniture of the room. There were glass enclosed shelves reaching to the ceiling, on which cut glass pieces and the best family set of green Haviland china was displayed. That service, a cherished wedding present, was seldom used except on important holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, or for an occasional large dinner party. In the lower section were drawers and closets for silverware and larger table pieces. In front of the south windows we generally had during the winter months wire stands filled with growing plants.

No special mention need be made of the pantry, except as to its considerable size and its completeness in shelves and closets. The kitchen also was conventional and commodious, with a large built-in coal range, occupying much space at the far wall. The rear portion of the house narrowed down considerably, so that the kitchen extended entirely across its width, having windows on both north and south sides. Extending beyond the kitchen was a room unique and of great utility, known as the summer kitchen. Today it is probably known as the laundry, but that was only one of the many uses it served in my day. Here was erected a large cookstove, set out in the room; and at the far end was the pump by which water was drawn and forced up into the attic storage tank, by turning a large iron wheel. That was no attractive chore; but came as a frequent assignment to both older boys, when "Uncle" George was needed elsewhere on the place for gardening or other duties.

On the main floor there only remains to be mentioned "the room back of the parlor", as we called it. This room on the north side of the house was often too cold for comfort, and was seldom made use of except as a storage place for things to be put out of sight, such as carriage robes, extra coats and shoes, skates, sleds and other toys belonging to the young. Two important uses were however made of that room. It frequently held barrels of apples, pears and other fruit in semi-cold storage and always in the weeks before Christmas it took on an air of a mysterious forbidden land into which was hustled interesting looking parcels of varying shapes and dimensions.

The broad staircase at Glengyle has two landings as it leads up to the second floor. There the rooms follow somewhat the plan of the floor below, except that on the south side there were three somewhat smaller rooms over the library and dining room. My parents room was over the parlor, and to the cold room behind it I was early assigned. Regularly in winter we dressed and undressed in one of the warmer rooms on the south side of the house, and then made a dash to get under the covers, sometimes almost burying ourselves in the feather bed mattress we were allowed to use in cold weather. Our one bathroom was complete, though far from modernly equipped, as we now know it. There was a marble topped basin and a large zinc lined tub; and we did have both hot and cold running water. The toilet of chain pulling vintage was always emptying its tank before its mission had been fulfilled; so that frequently there ensued much waiting and continued chain pulling before one could with safety turn the room over to the next clamoring applicant. Behind the bathroom, and built over the kitchen was another large bed room seldom used by the family, and somewhat grudgingly placed at the disposal of guests, who not unnaturally assumed that they had been assigned to a room with private bath, and took full possession of that adjoining convenience.

Our house at Glengyle was heated by a mammoth hot air furnace, whose appetite for fuel was insatiable. Coal was purchased in car load lots; but the supply taken in sometimes did not last out a cold winter. The house was lighted by gas generated from gasoline fed into an outside tank, and forced by a pressure created by winding on a cable a ponderous weight of stone which was suspended over a pit in the cellar.

So much for our house at Glengyle. There is much yet to be told about the grounds, for it is a really complete and lovely country place. From the now well-macadamized highway, which in our early days was but a country dirt road, a gravel drive leads up to and circles in front of the house, situated on rising ground about two hundred yards back from the avenue. A sweeping green lawn, partly shaded by a number of large trees, extends down from the front of the house. To the right there is an extensive grove of shade trees. In back of the house there stood in my day, a low building of stone construction which was known as the dairy. It was connected with the back doors of the house by a brick terrace. Refrigeration in the dairy was accomplished by a current of cold water passing through a cement trough in which were placed stone crocks containing milk, butter and other perishables. Except in the very hot weather that method of refrigeration proved adequate. There was however an ice house, a deep pit dug in the earth, insulated by walls of sawdust, and covered over by a slanting gabled roof of shingles. Into that ice house was placed every winter many farm wagonloads of ice cut from our neighbor John Clark's pond. When filled almost to the roof, the ice was covered with straw or sawdust to a depth of several feet; and it is remarkable how well that supply of ice lasted, some years even through the summer.

Another structure set directly behind the house at a safe and proper distance was the inevitable outhouse, so important in any country scene. The way thither led through a grape arbor, tempting if one dared to tarry; and at the end was a latticed enclosed, honeysuckle covered low building affording the accomodation needed, with seats cut to the several dimensions, small medium and large. Each of those seats was equipped with a flat board top, usually hinged for lifting. Toilet paper of the present day fine texture was then not much evident; but tissues and all soft brown wrappings that came into the house were reserved for use there. Paper of coarser stock and newspapers were not to be seen in outhouses of the better families, unless brought there for perusal which however was not uncommon.

A short distance to the right rear of the main house stood a large spreading chestnut tree, the joy of us young people on those first frosty days in late October when the forbidding burrs would open and give forth their fine tasty nuts. Beyond the chestnut tree, and passing through an orchard of smaller fruit trees, more recently planted, one came to the chicken house, an important unit in farm life. Our chicken house was in two sections, one for white leghorns and the other for barred Plymouth Rocks, which were kept separate, even to their wire enclosed runways. The upper floor of our chicken house provided quarters for pigeons, which we occasionally raised. Passing along, the overseer's cottage came next, and beyond it stables for horses and cows, with hayloft above, and carriage house and corn-crib adjoining. Usually we had at Glengyle three or four carriage horses and a team of heavy farm horses, as well as a half dozen cows, usually Jerseys, chosen for the quality of their milk. Back of all were the pig styes, and beyond the buildings was located our vegetable garden on a south sloping hillside. Farther out spread farmlands aggregating in all about seventy five acres. Altogether Glengyle was a lovely country home not easily forgotten; but in truth it proved to be a luxury continually straining the family income to maintain.

Acknowledgment should be made, and is made gladly, of the gracious and cordial hospitality of the present owner of Glengyle, Mrs. Louis Kohn, widow of a prominent and successful merchant of Baltimore. On occasional calls which we have made there in more recent years, to show my wife and children my boyhood home, we have always been extended a warm and sincere welcome; and leaving have taken with us the comforting thought that living at Glengyle makes one love the place.

CHAPTER II—OUR FAMILY CIRCLE

Our home life at Glengyle was congenial certainly, and for the most part happy for every member of the family. Credit for that fortunate state was largely due to the capably firm hand and loving heart of my mother. It was she who kept things running smoothly as far as possible, but running in any case. How potent as a lubricant is the oil of human kindness.

It may not be inopportune to sketch here briefly some antecedent history of the two family lines which met and merged in the marriage of my parents. The Magruders are an early Maryland family of Scottish origin. The founder of the American line was Alexander Magruder or Magruether, as it was sometimes spelled, a native of Perthshire, Scotland, who in 1652 came as an indentured servant to the colony established by the Calverts. He had been taken prisoner at the battle of Worcester, fighting in the losing cause of the Stuarts. Report is that he was a tall, florid, reddish haired Scot, of boundless energy and initiative. In a few years he had worked off his indenture, and by 1661 he is known to have taken out a patent for the first of several large tracts of land which he later acquired. Alexander was twice married, and had in all six children. We are descended from the eldest son, Samuel, whose wife was Sarah Beall, daughter of Colonel Ninian Beall, also a Maryland colonist of Scottish birth. Ninian Beall and Alexander Magruder were undoubtedly close friends as well as neighbors. Beall was a large landowner in Maryland, his extensive properties including among others the now famous tract in Georgetown known as Dumbarton Oaks. Beall's name for the place was "Rock of Dumbarton". He was prominent in the Protestant faction which successfully wrested the government of the colony from the representatives of the founders, the Catholic Calverts. It is a matter of record that Ninian Beall was one of the pioneers of Presbyterianism in America.

The early Magruders were adherents of the established church, which has become the Protestant Episcopal; and were prominently identified as church officials in Southern Maryland parishes. For generations they were landowners in that section, living on the products of their broad acres. Our grandfather, sixth in the American line of descent from Alexander, was born on his father's farm near Beltsville in 1823. He was given the illustrious surnames of the patriot and former President, Thomas Jefferson. One of a large family, and needing to make his own way in the world, after meager schooling, he went as a young man to Washington, where at first he clerked in a store. In Washington he met and married Sarah Ann Peyton Boteler of Virginia ancestry. They moved with their young family shortly after the end of the Civil War, to Baltimore. There grandfather established and conducted for a number of years a large wholesale and manufacturing boot and shoe business, being one of the earliest representatives in the South of large Boston manufacturers. Eight children were born to T. J. and Sarah. My father was the fifth child. He attended public and private schools in Baltimore, and later Randolph Macon College at Ashland, Va. Like all of his brothers he was taken into his father's business; and soon contributed much in initiative and ability to its success in the early eighties.

Grandfather was a loyal and devoted churchman. In youth he became connected with the Methodist Church; and was later a founder of Trinity M. E. Church South in Baltimore. It was there that young Bob Magruder met Miss Lizzie Thomas, daughter of James P. Thomas and Ann Elizabeth McGee. The Thomases are an Eastern Shore family of Welsh extraction, originally Quakers in America. The father of James, whose name was Sterling Thomas, came to Baltimore in the early years of the nineteenth century. He was a prominent citizen of East Baltimore, the then residential section, which later was called Old Town. His son James grew up to be a successful business man; in later years being a member of the Baltimore Stock Exchange, where he made and unfortunately lost several fortunes. His wife Ann was a daughter of the Reverend Thomas McGee, an eminent Methodist circuit riding preacher, whose portrait in oils is one of our prized family possessions, as is also a priceless patchwork quilt, made and presented to him one hundred years ago, by the women of Severn Circuit in Southern Maryland. My Thomas grandparents had eight sons and only one daughter, Elizabeth Rebecca, Miss Lizzie, as she was called. Much concern was felt by her family over the proposed marriage of "Sister" to dashing and impetuous young Bob Magruder. But the lovers had no doubts. Their engagement was not protracted; and they were married September 11, 1877. Thus we come to my parents and their home life, which this chapter is intended to tell of.

Our life at Glengyle was wholesome and happy. Religious training and practices, which had been followed in their respective family homes, were adopted by my parents. Grace, or as we called it, a blessing, before meals was rarely overlooked. We were early taken to Sunday School, as my father was for years the superintendent. In order to ride home with the family we customarily stayed for the church service. It was a two and one half mile drive to the village church; and usually we took along a full carriage load of neighbor's children, picking them up along the way. In my youth Sunday was a day set apart, and noisy games and sports were not indulged in. Father and the boys frequently walked around the place on Sunday afternoon, planning changes and improvements. At the end of that day, as I have said, all the family usually joined in singing hymns.

Visitors were our principal diversion and pleasure. Regularly aunts, uncles and cousins, as well as family friends, came out from the city to spend the day, or sometimes a longer visit. A meal was always included in the hospitality extended. Help was plentiful and cheap, so that we children were not required to do many chores around the place. We did learn to hitch up horses to whatever conveyance was called for by the number of persons to be transported. In the winter time there were few playmates nearby, and we were thrown on our own resources. In summers two neighboring houses were occupied by families with large numbers of children; and Saturday afternoon ball games were regularly scheduled. A stream on the Clark farm across the road provided choice swimming holes; and much time was spent there, where as youngsters we learned to swim without the incumbrance of suits or even trunks. Sometimes through affected modesty the older boys would daub their middles with mud, if an adult or female person came near. But as I remember it the few little girls in the neighboring families did not go swimming with us at the Dam or at Lucky Bridge or the Bend, our favorite spots.

Farm activities at Glengyle were largely governed by the seasons. In the late Spring there was planting to be done and flowers to be set out. Summer brought endless weeding, and the gathering of vegetables; also opportunity to help with the haying. In late summer came that great excitement, the arrival of the steam propelled tractor, with threshing machine and its crew of itinerant helpers, who were to spend two or three days on the place, and had to be fed. And how they could eat! Fall brought trips into the back country woods to gather chestnuts, which with the harder shell nuts we collected were stored away for the winter. Our principal sports in winter were skating on the nearby pond, sleighriding and tobogganing. A large toboggan sled was hitched to one of the horses, and we went off to a nearby hill, where packed with a noisy group, each person clutching the one in front, we went dashing down. It was the duty of someone to have the horse down there to drag the toboggan up hill again, so our fun was unspoiled by that laborious task. More than once we were snowbound at Glengyle. During the famous blizzard of '88, which I do not claim to remember, our roads were completely impassable; and for several days our farm was out of touch with the outside world.

One exciting activity of the early winter should be related, for to young boys it brought a great thrill, and perhaps even a chance to miss school. That was hog-killing, which as I recall it, always took place in early December, when the air was frosty and the ground sometimes snow covered. There were usually at least a half dozen hogs which had been fattened for slaughtering. Uncle Ned Johnson, colored, an expert knife wielder, was master of ceremonies. He would station himself beside the little sliding door, leading out from the shelter into the pig pen. Then as a squealing hog ran or was driven out, a quick thrust at the jugular vein served to turn Mr. Pig into Pork. The animal was bled and then dragged to a large cask filled with water, which had been heated to the scalding point by throwing in white hot stones, broken plough shares and odd pieces of iron. When sufficient time had elapsed the carcass was dragged from its much too Turkish bath and placed on a rough board table, and there the bristles were scraped off. The hogs were then hung head down from a scaffolding, their bellies slit open and the precious innards removed and carefully collected. Sausage casings must be salvaged and cleaned, and all other usable parts saved to go into the pot for making "pudding meat", the Maryland name for a product resembling the present day liverwurst. It was highly prized as a breakfast dish, served browned and sizzling. Several days were spent cutting up the hogs, rendering lard and grinding sausage meat. Hams and shoulders were packed away in salt and hickory ashes for curing and later smoking. The fresh pork chops, tenderloins, spare ribs and the like eaten to our fill, and also sent around among the various branches of the family and connections as a special treat from our farm.

On Thanksgiving and New Years Day large family parties were held at the city home of my Magruder grandparents. Always forty or more, aunts, uncles and cousins, were present. My great mortification at those parties, as I remember it, was that I did not grow up soon enough to be assigned a place at the grown-ups table.

At Glengyle, Christmas was our big celebration. Weeks before, father, my brother, one of the farm men and I scoured the nearby woods to select the right cedar tree, not spruce or pine now more popular, to be later cut down and carted home for our family tree. It would have to be one to fill the bay window in our library. And it always did.

After seemingly countless days of anxious and impatient waiting finally Christmas Eve would at long last arrive. The fragrant tree was set up in its accustomed bay window recess, above a moss-covered, neatly fenced in yard, in which figures of sheep and other small animals were later to be placed. Usually one or more family friends childless spinsters predominating, had arrived to spend the holiday with us, especially to assist in the tree trimming ceremonies. Time came for us youngsters to hang up our stockings beside the broad fireplace in the library, the most commodious entrance for St. Nick the house afforded. Then we were shunted off to bed where we lay long with ears alert for any sound ominous or promising. But sleep at last overcame us so that the prancing footsteps on the roof of Donner and Vixen were seldom heard.

Downstairs however, busy hands were at work, and the large fragrant green cone of cedar became a dazzling sight of frosted globes and glittering stars, with always the figure of a cherubic angel floating at the topmost point. From the forbidden room back of the parlor came packages of assorted sizes and shapes which were piled under the tree; and the final touch of Santa Claus' helpers' hands was given to filling to the brim the stockings hung by the fireside. That was my mother's special function. She favored good things to eat which she crammed into the stockings with a generous hand. Home made sugar and ginger cookies, hard candies and sweet surprises of various sorts were topped by a plump round orange at the stocking's wide opening. This done and the tree trimming having been completed, all sat down to a midnight repast, at which first slices of the home made fruit cake, and a round of egg-nog were featured, and much enjoyed. Quiet at last reigned, until very early in the morning, when light youthful steps might have been heard hurriedly descending the stairs. Soon we came into the thrilling possession of our Christmas stockings filled to overflowing. Furtive glances were cast at the promising mountain of packages under the gloriously beautifully trimmed tree ; but usually we waited without peeking until all the family had assembled downstairs, and breakfast was hurriedly consumed. Then, with the servants called in to join the family circle, the grand opening began, accompanied by much enthusiastic shouting.

Soon in the back regions all was astir and bustle in preparation for Christmas dinner, for invariably there were to be other invited guests. Sometimes the overseer and family, sometimes the minister's family, and others perhaps less fortunate, who could be gathered in for that generous feast. Indeed our family Christmas dinner parties were memorable, and sometimes tests of endurance. This, for illustration was the usual menu : Dinner began with creamed oyster soup. When those plates were cleared, on came the main meal. A monstrous, sometimes home raised turkey at one end of the table. A luscious baked ham at the foot. The vegetables served usually included celery, sweet potatoes, macaroni, hominy, baked oysters, tomatoes and sauerkraut. The last named dish was reserved only for such feast days at our home. Desserts were mince pie, plum pudding, ice cream and wine jelly, nuts, raisins, fruits etc. etc. After dinner an air of comparative inactivity prevailed. If Christmas carols were sung, the singing showed that our hearts were filled with good feeling and ourselves with dinner. A round of egg nog in the evening, which we youngsters were allowed to sip, brought to a close that day of happiness for young and old alike.

CHAPTER III—CONSIDERABLY COLORED

Life in the Maryland countryside, at the time of which I write, seems, on reflection, to have been smooth running and free of many of the harrassments which beset us in these days, when those who march under the banner "Equality" are pressing to the forefront with much vociferous shouting. Along with Opportunity and Responsibility, Equality must be recognized by the understanding as not merely a social question to be solved through regulation imposed by some forcible authority working from the outside. Rather must it be developed from within, and proven, as must Ability, Intelligence, Initiative and other qualities of leadership. Especially to be regretted is the present tendency to make the matter of equality a racial issue. That way cannot lead to solution, but only to bitterness and eventual strife. History has proven this to be true, and history has a way of repeating itself. A place exists in the economic and social plan of life in this great Nation of ours for the energies and talents of every individual making up its citizenry. All cannot be leaders. All cannot be creators of opportunity. In fact many people shun the responsibilities that go with authority; and prefer to do work planned for and assigned to them. In all of this there need be no conflict with true ideals of Democracy. Each must fill his niche, using those talents, skills and experiences with which he has been endowed. In that way, and in that way alone, may the fabric be woven and a structure reared in our beloved Country, that will come nearest to perfection in accomplishment.

With this preface I will endeavor to depict several persons of the colored race with whom I had contact in the growing up years, which I am endeavoring here to record.

In the forefront comes to mind "Uncle George". George Robinson was born in slavery on a farm in one of the lower Eastern Shore counties of Maryland, Somerset I believe. It is probable that the name of the family which owned his parents, and thus became the owners of young George was "Robinson". On that I have no exact information, but such was the custom of those days. How he happened to drift away from his native countryside to find work in and around the city of Baltimore, I never knew. As long as he lived in our Maryland home there existed a nostalgic yearning for the Eastern Shore; and he made many trips back there by steamboat from Baltimore, while any of "the folks" he had known down there were still living. From my earliest recollection Uncle George was a member of our household at Glengyle, sleeping in a large unheated attic room and eating his full square three meals daily at a table beside a south window in the kitchen.

How his great loyalty to my father and mother developed I have never quite understood. Mother he referred to as "the Missus" or sometimes "Miss Lizzie", never as "Mrs. Magruder". Father was always "the Boss". For each one of us children in the family there was a place in his big heart of real attachment. We were referred to by Uncle George as "our children", as was Glengyle to him "our place". And we considered him one of the family. The barrier of color existed. He would not have had it otherwise; but surmounting it with rare success were qualities of mutual affection and loyalty.

Uncle George, as I remember him in the early years, was somewhat above medium height, and well built, not heavy. His skin was more brown than black. His hair was usually close cropped and characteristically kinky. He wore a small graying mustache; his face otherwise was always clean shaven. Whether he made frequent use of a razor or did not need to shave often, I do not know. He was slightly stooped through a lifetime of out of doors work, for he was principally our gardener, and disliked being called on for work inside the house, other than heavy lifting when the furniture had to be moved around. He was in no sense a house man, but spent his days with a rake or hoe in season. Milking the cows was also one of his regular occupations; and the path he trod carrying large tin pails of new milk from the barn to the dairy behind the house, was plainly marked. George was also our principal hand at pumping water from the well beneath the summer kitchen floor, to fill the attic tank.

It is remarkable how well he got along with the various cooks who came and went. There was always banter and chaffing back and forth across the kitchen, but he waited on them and they on him. Regularly it was Uncle George who made the fire in the coal range early each morning, and carried up from the cellar unnumbered pails of coal for the day's consumption. Just as regularly his meals were placed before him by the cook then installed, and his dishes washed for him. Frequently my older brother and I would leave our places at the family table to finish the meal sitting beside Uncle George. He had an endless fund of stories to tell, not of the imaginary Uncle Remus variety; but stories rather of life as he knew it, embellished by references to events of the times on which he kept himself well posted. He knew a great deal about horses, old Pimlico racetrack being close by; and he had definite views on the comparative prowess of the great John L. Sullivan and his rival Jake Kilrain, two prominent prizefighters of that day. He was fond of using the expression "niggers", when referring to the more presumptive members of his race, whom he frequently called "fresh".

Of Uncle George's love life I know little. There was a small cottage in the poorer section of the village of Arlington, occupied by a colored woman who took in washing. A bevy of young black children overran that house and yard. Toward them George adopted a somewhat paternalistic attitude, but there was no formal acknowledgment of fatherhood. Nor probably was there legitimacy in their birth; for the best of my recollection George never acknowledged the existence of formal bonds of wedlock. Rather than women his chief weakness was more probably whiskey. Emptied flasks were found in odd corners and hedgerows; and often Uncle George would go about singing at his work. Seldom was he ever really drunk or even surly. As far as I know he had no fondness for the more plebian beer; but two roadhouses on the not far distant Riestertown Road were his sources of supply of a cheap grade of rye whiskey, then as now an important product of my home state.

Among other duties Uncle George was also the family coachman. Not that he drove the family about often. He did not care for that, and was never willing to wear any sort of livery. In fact his too frequent slovenly dress and barnyard aroma disqualified him from acting in that capacity. His job was rather to harness the horse or horses to whichever carriage was called for, and to have the team at the front door at the time required. He would also wait up until all hours of the night, if my father was out late, to unharness and put away the horses and carriage. At those times he would sit asleep on a chair beside the kitchen fire, frequently astride, resting his head and hands on the back of the chair. With little noise he would climb in stocking feet to his attic room; and just as quietly he would come down the back stairs in the early morning hours, in winter before daybreak. How Uncle George managed the matter of bodily cleanliness I do not know. Seldom was any objectionable odor noticed about him except that of the barnyard above referred to; and to correct that he usually kept his boots outside the kitchen door, or in the outer summer kitchen.

When the time came that Glengyle was to be sold because of the removal of the family to New York, it was only natural that Uncle

George was counted a member of the family to move to the metropolis. With our best pair of driving horses and carriage George was loaded on a freight car at the nearby Western Maryland railroad switch. In an adjoining freight car all the family furniture and possessions had been packed. Together they rolled away through the night, arriving sometime next day at the railroad terminal in South Brooklyn. There in rented houses Uncle George lived with us for several years making himself generally useful ; but the rigors of the Northern climate coupled with his advanced years caused him to contract pneumonia. He was cared for by my mother, and died peacefully after a short illness.

Of the numerous colored women who at various times came to be members of our household, there is not a great deal to be recorded. I will sketch briefly a few who come to mind. My mother's first cook was named Lou Camphor. A bond of mutual regard and dependence grew out of that association. Lou Camphor did not live in at Glengyle with us. She had acquired a husband and a home of her own, when I remember her. But seldom was an elaborate dinner planned at Glengyle that Lou was not brought in to preside over operations in the kitchen department. Mother relied on her completely, and left everything to her expert execution. Of course the planning and the marketing continued to be Mother's province, for she was expert in that field. But Lou Camphor's cooking was famous, and deservedly so. Mother always felt completely confident when Lou arrived and took over the backstairs management.

Later there came Caroline, to whom we sang "Ca'line, Ca'line, can't you dance the peavine?" And she could and did to our great delight. Caroline I believe, was a sister of Uncle George. She was a light colored negress who lived in the household at various times ; and in later years came in to do the family washing.

Lizzie Ransom was a portly perspiring negress who also was an excellent cook. She was at times temperamental ; and had frequent altercations with Uncle George ; for she ruled the kitchen department as though it was her abyssinian empire. At different times Lizzie Ransom brought various of her progeny with her to assist in the work

Sam, I knew him by no other name, was a young colored boy who lived with us. His mother was probably then the cook. We were devoted friends, but occasionally fought like wild animals. Boys are that way. Once when the family was entertaining a large company of visitors, Sam was led down into the nearby woods, completely undressed, and then paraded about in his birthday suit before the eyes of the assembled guests on the front porch.

Another maid we had at a later period was named Mary Thrashley. She was almost white in appearance; and had a young daughter who she brought to live with her at Glengyle. The daughter's name was Ethel; which name had been given by my parents to my sister then a little tot running around. Much confusion resulted; for when "Ethel" was called, almost invariably the wrong one answered. As far as I can recall, no harm befell black Ethel while she was in residence.

I have spoken already of Ned Johnson, and of his prowess as master of ceremonies at hog-killing time. Ned Johnson's hair was long, and he wore it braided. He was a sort of itinerant helper in the neighborhood; and had worked on every farm within a radius of several miles. He was fond of telling of one land owner in the section, who before he hired a farm hand, would tell him to turn around so that he could see the seat of his trousers. If they were much patched, as often they were, he would not hire the man, turning him off with the remark "You sit down too much". I have only to add, about Ned Johnson, that I believe he was a frequent and fond drinking companion of Uncle George.

In this chapter I have only attempted to touch on some personalities and qualities remembered among the colored folk with whom I was in contact during my boyhood years. The sketches are fragmentary; but they may help to show the existence at that time of a happy relationship between the races, each maintaining its proper place. That circumstance of my upbringing has made it possible for me to get along well with people of the colored race, wherever I have met them through later life.

Ancestral Charts

In the Archives of the American Clan Gregor Society are four genealogical Charts showing every line of the ancestry of Alexander Magruder, Immigrant to Maryland in 1652. From him are descended all of Magruder blood in the United States of America. Going back, as these Charts do, through the MacGregors they are therefore of great value and interest to everyone of MacGregor descent.

These Charts are of superb workmanship, legibly written in long hand and rightly embellished with pictures done in water color of Ancient Maps, Coats of Arms, Knights in Armor, a Queen in Royal robes, a Duke, Earle, a Viking, a Viking boat, Medieval Castles and others of beauty and interest.

The largest of these Charts is twelve feet long by twenty-nine inches wide. It goes back to the first Century B. C., to our Viking Fathers through the MacGregor and various other connecting lines. There are three other Charts, smaller and of varying sizes.

The compiler and doner of this valuable work, Mrs. Robert Samuel Pope, Jr., nee Olive Magruder Smith, is a Clansman of many years, her number being 63. She writes these Charts represent the work of twenty years. Mr. and Mrs. Pope live in Dunwoody, Georgia.

Genealogical Manuscript

Another work of great genealogical value is "The Descendants of Hezekiah Magruder" by Robert Lee Magruder, Jr., of Columbia, Georgia. This line is through Ninian Beall Magruder, Samuel Ye 3rd, Ninian, Samuel, Alexander.

The History of Clan Gregor

"The History of Clan Gregor" in two volumes, by Miss Amelia Georgianna Murray MacGregor, of MacGregor; Publisher, William Brown, Edinburgh, Scotland, 1909. Miss MacGregor presented these soon after publication.

A. C. G. Year Books

A complete set of Year Books given by Alexander Muncaster, our deceased Chancellor, to Mrs. O. O. van den'Berg, and turned over by her to the Society for the use of future Registrars, have been bound in red with gold tooling, and are in seven volumes.

Books

The 34th and latest editions of "The Scottish Tartans" and "Scottish Clans and Their Tartans" have been presented by W. and A. K. Johnston, Ltd., of Edinburgh to the American Clan Gregor Society through Mrs. van den'Berg.

Photographs and Cuts

A request is made by the Registrar for photographs or cuts of homes owned, or at one time owned, by members of the Clan or their MacGregor-Magruder kin. Also it is requested that a sketch of the history of these places accompany the pictures of them, who built or purchased the place and when; name of the Home or Plantation, and where located, in fact any information or story connected with the property or family that would be of interest to Clansmen.

When sufficient material is collected it is hoped to have it published in book form and sold for the Headquarters Fund.

Mr. Robert Lee Magruder, Jr., has just sent for the Archives of the Clan a manuscript entitled "Descendants of Hezekiah Magruder of Georgia Who Participated in World War II. He has dedicated this manuscript "To the Memory of Frank Thomas Malone, son of Robert Malone and Sarah Catherine Magruder, born December 22, 1924, died in Service, March 19, 1944." The manuscript contains the records of thirty Service men and gives each one's line of descent back to Hezekiah Magruder.

OF INTEREST TO MEMBERS

In a telephone conversation with Dr. H. B. McDonald of College Park he told me he had attended the Farmers Convention at Sandy Spring, Maryland, in February of this year and heard a resolution commending our Treasurer for his work in agriculture in Montgomery County, Maryland. After some time I got a copy of this resolution and think it may be of interest to our members, as many of them know the Treasurer as "just an old farmer." The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas; Praise is too often withheld until it is too late to benefit those for whom it is intended, and

Whereas; We fully appreciate the services rendered Agriculture by those various faithful persons who have helped to keep alive the farm organizations in this Country, and

Whereas; John E. Muncaster, Sr., has been outstanding in such service, having served successively as Secretary, Vice-President and President of this Farmers Convention; Secretary of the Montgomery County Agricultural Society, and other organizations, besides being a practical farmer as well, and

Whereas; In particular, he has just completed thirty-five years service as Secretary of the Senior Farmers Club, therefore

Therefore, Be It Resolved; By this 73rd Annual Farmers Convention of Sandy Spring, this 23rd day of February, 1946,

That we do hereby publicly acknowledge our sense of debt to John E. Muncaster, Sr., and wish to express our hope that he may now fully enjoy the leisure he has so richly earned."

Dr. McDonald also said he attended a meeting of the Farmers Club of Sandy Spring at the home of John E. Muncaster and was present when the members of the Club presented our Treasurer with a gold watch with the inscription: "Presented to John E. Muncaster, Secretary 1911 to 1946, by the Farmers Club of Montgomery County."

He also became Treasurer of American Clan Gregor Society at the Gathering in 1911 and has held that office continually ever since.
