AMERICAN CLAN GREGOR SOCIETY, INC.
COUNCIL MEETING
October 18, 1991

The Council Meeting of the American Clan Gregor Society, Inc. was held in the Dominion Room of the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond, VA on October 18, 1991. It was called to order by the Chieftain, George F. McGregor, at 0915.

The Chaplain, the Reverend H. M. (Ray) Richardson, gave the invocation in which he noted the geographic expansion of the Society and its meaning.

The Scribe, McGregor Gray, noted that the minutes of the 1990 Meeting could not have been read by the members since the Yearbook had not yet been distributed. With the Council's permission, in lieu of reading the minutes he asked that the Council members provide him with any changes or corrections so that they may be included in next year's Yearbook.

The Treasurer, James E. Woolley, Jr., distributed a detailed Treasurer's Report showing that the finances of the Society are in good order.

The Registrar, Fran (Mrs. Herschel M.) Browne, reported that there were 23 new members, two of whom entered as life members; five new Associate Members; and nine new junior members. Two members changed their status to life members.

The Historian, Helen (Mrs. William) Garrett, reported that 13 births, three marriages, 17 deaths of members and two deaths of relatives of members had been reported.

The Editor, Maggie (Mrs. Thomas) Gregg, reported that she had no report since she had been forced by the illness of her husband to turn over the issuance of the Yearbook to Joe and Peg Tichy, who had worked valiantly to produce the Yearbook. Joe had a few copies but distribution will take place later.

The Council gave Maggie a round of applause and thanked her for all her efforts as Editor which, sadly, have now come to an end. Fran Browne noted that Maggie should be praised for her innovation in the form of the Index to Proper Names in Genealogical Sections at the back of the Yearbook.

The Librarian, Mason M. Lummis, reported that there was no change in the status of the Library, that it was still in storage. He made his annual appeal for any suggestions as to a possible location in the Washington area.

Pat (Howard T.) Bierer, reporting for the Trustees, stated that things had been quiet and he had no report.

The Assistant Chieftain, Joseph C. Tichy, Jr., gave his report:

The membership has remained generally static, with a larger than normal number of deaths, sixteen, made up for by new memberships.

The Newsletter publication has been approved by the Council in the past, but the editor, Alan Gregg, has not received many contributions. Without them there can be no Newsletter.

James A. Allensworth is working on the program for computerization of the genealogical records. When that is completed, sometime this year, someone will have to be hired to place the existing records in the computer. Jim is available for questioning by anyone interested in his work.

Illnesses have hurt the Society this year. The Ranking Deputy Chieftain, Robert W. MacGregor, has felt it necessary to resign due to ill health; and Winfield S. Mayne, a Trustee, could not be present at the Gathering, also due to illness. If the Nominating Committee has not found a candidate before the end of the Gathering, it may be necessary to hold an election by mail. Our Piper, Bill Stokoe, thought he could be present, but his wife's illness prevented his presence so Rob Roy MacGregor is filling in for him.

Forbes MacGregor has expanded his short history of the clan into a 350,000 word work, to be entitled "Too Rampant for the Lion!" A committee consisting of Abbey Magruder, Phil Greer, and John Bellissai will look into whether the ACGS should support the publication of the book. The Scottish Clan Gregor Society has refused and the committee will first look into their objections.

With the aid of charts, Joe discussed the happy history of the Society's financial rise. He also discussed the Scholarship Funds in this context.

At Joe's suggestion, the Council nominated and approved the award of Honorary Membership in the Society to Greg O'Brien, our band's Pipe Major. It was agreed to keep the award a secret until the banquet.

Lou (Mrs. William E.) McGregor discussed the plans for the trip next August to attend the Clan Gathering in Scotland. There is still room for attendance under either plan, and the universities have extended their deadline for signing up until December 31, 1991. Literature on the trip is available.

Coleman McGehee, the Gathering Chairman, extended his welcome to the Council and Members and expressed his hope that members would take advantage of the brochures at the registration desk to visit sites not on the tour, this weekend or another time.

An application from a prospective member whose connection to the Clan was supported by "documentation" from a clan map which he had purchased in Scotland was discussed. None of the books used by the Society to determine Clan Gregor connections note a link to the Kirkpatricks. The applicant will be asked to pursue further documentation.

Under new business, a suggestion, which had been made at the Santa Rosa State Deputy Meeting that the title, State Deputy Chieftain Emeritus, be approved and introduced. After a discussion of the pros and cons it was decided not to add this title to our list of titles. Joe Tichy will handle the matter administratively.

After discussion, it was decided to raise the limit on assistance to the operators of tents at Highland Games from $50 to $100, to be limited to expenses involved with the tent only.

Also under new business, Joe Tichy reported that Eunice Hayden, under whose name the Society has been incorporated in the District of Columbia, has asked that she be replaced. The Council approved the appointment of John Bellassai, our Chancellor, to fulfill this function.

Joe also reported that Carol Clark, who has made our haggis in the past, has only been able to make the ceremonial haggis this year due to a broken arm. She is to be thanked for this one-armed effort beyond the call of duty.

Under new business Bill and Lou McGregor reported that Samuel Grier who was a member of our Society is seriously ill and in desperate need of financial assistance. After some discussion it was moved by the Council to send Sam $500 from the funds available for charitable purposes.

Bill McGregor, for the Nominating Committee, presented the slate of officers for next year (omitting the position of Ranking Deputy Chieftain):

Chieftain	George F. McGregor
Scribe	Malcolm G. MacGregor
Registrar	Mrs. Herschel M. Browne
Historian	Mrs. William Garrett
Treasurer	James E. Woolley, Jr.
Chaplain	Rev. Horatio M. Richardson
Surgeon ..	Dr. Mary Louise Rutledge (Mrs. William E. McGregor)
Chancellor	John R. Bellasai
Librarian	Lt. Col. Mason M. Lummis
Editor	Elizabeth Dorsett
Piper	Dr. William C. Stokoe
Trustees	E. Phillips Grier
	Capt. Howard T. Bierer
	Winfield G. Mayne

The slate was approved and will be presented to the general membership. A Nominating Committee consisting of William E. McGregor, Abbey W. Magruder, Jr. and Joseph C. Tichy was chosen and approved.

The Chieftain appointed Joseph C. Tichy as Assistant Chieftain again and the Council approved the appointment with warmth.

At 1045 the meeting was adjourned.

GENERAL MEETING

The Chieftain, George F. McGregor, opened the General Meeting in the Empire Room of the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond, VA at 0935, October 19, 1991. Our chaplain, Rev. Horatio M. Richardson, gave the invocation stressing the heritage of our society and ending with an appeal that we be responsive to the needs of others.

The reports of the Treasurer, the Registrar, the Historian, the Editor and the Librarian were given. The Treasurer reported that the net worth of the Society is $122,476.98. The Registrar welcomed the new members present and those here for the first time. The Historian increased the number of births reported to 12. Otherwise nothing new since the Council Meeting.

The Assistant Chieftain, Joseph C. Tichy Jr., gave his report:

Attendance for this Gathering has reached 230, fourth largest in history, and the Gathering Chairman, Coleman McGehee, is to be commended for the arrangements.

Next year the Gathering will be in the Netherland Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati, Ohio, located on the "Skywalk", an Omni Hotel. It will be held from October 8 to 10. The tour will be on a paddleboat steamer on the river, visiting Covington, KY. The following week a festival celebrating the river boats of the past will be held and reservations in city hotels are already unavailable.

For the first time in history two McGregors will be recipients of the U of Virginia Medical School scholarships, Randolph Knight and Tom Ramsey Richardson. The John Kennedy Magruder scholarship has been given to a student at the school of Nursing, Mary M. Chandler, who has written a very appreciative letter of thanks to the Society. The Harry and Edith Blunt Scholarship fund provided scholarships to Granville Lloyd, who will be studying medicine at Brown, and Robert Covan.

The Chieftain's address recognized the work of the State Deputy Chieftains and their helpers, particularly the tent managers at Highland Games and other events. He hopes that in the future there will be more State Deputy Chieftains and that there will be greater participation by members in State events.

Lou McGregor expanded on her remarks at the Council Meeting about the Scottish Clan Gregor Society Gathering in Scotland next August, underlining the fact that there are still openings and that the program as outlined in the brochures looks great. She explained that applicants had not received notification of receipt because the original cost estimate had been based on a high value of the pound and that the strengthening of the dollar would lower the cost of the trip.

The slate for officers and trustees was presented by William E. McGregor as follows:

Chieftain	George F. McGregor
Scribe	Malcolm G. MacGregor
Registrar	Mrs. Herschel M. Browne
Historian	Mrs. William Garrett
Treasurer	James E. Woolley, Jr.
Chaplain	Rev. Horatio M. Richardson
Surgeon	Mrs. William E. McGregor
Chancellor	John K. Bellassai
Librarian	Mason M. Lummis
Editor	Elizabeth Dorsett
Piper	Dr. William C. Stokoe
Trustees	E. Phillips Grier

The Slate was approved by the General Membership.

At 10:35 AM the meeting was adjourned.

MEMORIALS

RUSSELL CARHART MCGREGOR, Ph.D.

Russell Carhart McGregor, Clan No. 1858LM, Clan Chieftain 1984-1987, died at his home in Newcastle, Maine on February 1, 1991 from pancreatic cancer. He had been sick for approximately seven months.

He was born in Norwalk, Connecticut on May 16, 1926, the son of Charles Jewett McGregor and Helen Carhart. Russell's genealogy and family history is in the 1984 Yearbook (Vol. LXVII, pp. 60-66). He received his B.S.F. from the University of Michigan in 1951, an M.F. from Yale University in 1952 and a doctorate in natural resource economics was granted by the University of Michigan in 1968.

He spent many years in Alaska exploring volcanos and searching for arctic oil with U.S.G.S. and fire control with the Bureau of Land Management. He served with the U.S. Army 4th Infantry Regiment at Ladd Field from 1953-55. He joined the U.S. Bureau of the Budget (Office of Management & Budget) in the late fifties and was the Examiner for agricultural science and education, water research, extension and continuing education under four Presidents. In 1969 he became Assistant to the Vice President for Agriculture & Sciences at the University of California. He returned to Washington, D.C. to become the Director of Governmental Relations (Energy and Natural Resources) for the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

In the 1985 Russ became Director of Development for the University of Maine. "Potomac Fever" brought him back to Washington. In 1988 he went to work for Clean Sites, Inc. A non-profit, independent organization working to accelerate the cleanup of hazardous waste in America, as their Director of Development & Marketing. He commuted between Maine and Washington.

Russ joined ACGS in the seventies and served on the Council for five years before becoming Chieftain. During his tenure he established seven goals for the society. He also extended his enthusiasm to all his McGregor kin and delved deeper into his own genealogy. In addition he was a member of The Clan Gregor Society, New England Chapter.

Services were held at the Second Congregational Church in Newcastle, Maine on February 9, 1991 with a piper present.

He is survived by his wife, Kathleen and his two sons, Russell Carhart II and Andrew William.

JOHN WILLIAMS CLAGETT

John W. Clagett, 77, Clan No. 1514, retired president of the Futures Industry Association of Washington, DC, died in Scottsdale, Arizona, September 26, 1991. He is survived by his wife of 55 years, Martha, and son, Evans, of Phoenix, Arizona.

Born in Potomac, Maryland, he was schooled locally and attended the University of Maryland and graduated LLB National University Law School in 1936.

His business career spanned both Government and Industry. He was Regional Director in Chicago for the Department of Agriculture in his early years. He was President of the New York Mercantile Exchange from 1957 to 1962. He was later Manager of the Mercantile Exchange Clearing House and then the founding President of the National Exchange - the first approval given to an Exchange since the inception of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Due to failing health, John moved from his Maryland home to reside near his son in Arizona.

His club memberships included Burning Tree of Bethesda, Maryland and the Army and Navy Club of Washington, DC.

WILLIAM ROBERTSON MCGREGOR

William R. McGregor, Clan No. 2094, died on April 14, 1991 at the age of 72.

Born in Fairfax, Iowa, he was a graduate of the University of Iowa. His career was as an administrator in heavy engineering construction. He served in the Navy during World War II.

He was President of the Board of Governors of the Junior Masonic Museum in Marin County, California, was active in Several Masonic Societies, the American Clan Gregor Society and the Nevada Society of Scottish Clans.

Mac is survived by his wife, Kathryn Shackett McGregor, of Gardnerville, Nevada and two sons, William R., Jr. of Dumphries, Virginia and Robb A. of Bellingham, Washington and three grandchildren.

COLONEL SAMUEL B. MAGRUDER

Colonel Samuel Bertrom Magruder, Clan No. 787, died December 19, 1990. Colonel Magruder was 73 at the time of his death in Vicksburg after a lengthy illness.

He was the son of the late John Martin Magruder and Katherine Daniell Magruder both descendants of pioneer Claiborne County families.

Colonel Magruder was born and reared at Albena, graduated from Port Gibson High School and attended Marion Military Institute in Alabama before entering the U.S. Military Academy at West Point where he graduated in June 1941.

He retired in September 1971 after 30 years of service in the U.S. Army. He returned to Claiborne County and made his home there.

His military career took him to Northern Europe as a field artillery officer during World War II, to Cambodia in 1956 and to South Korea in 1968. He also saw service in Puerto Rico, Paris, and several military posts in the United States.

Colonel Magruder was awarded the Bronze Star, the Legion of Merit and two Oak-Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Ribbon and the French Croix de Guerre.

He was an active member of St. James's Episcopal Church, president of the Claiborne County Historical Society, the Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Grand Gulf Park board.

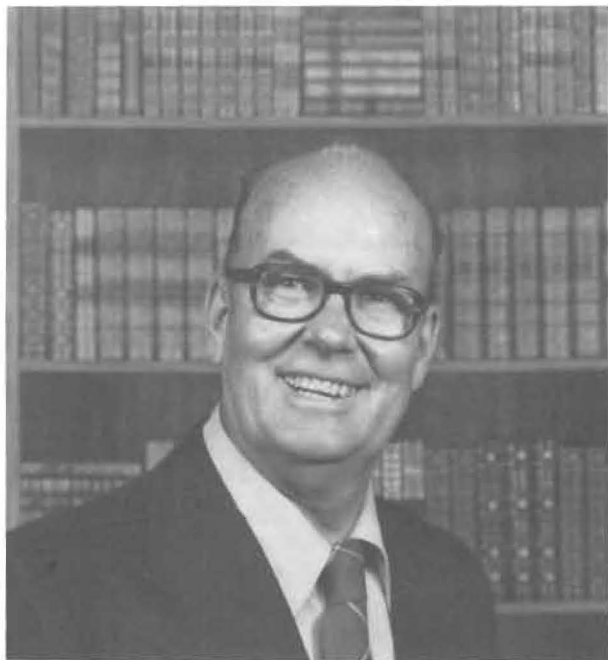

Colonel Magruder is survived by his wife, Linden LeJuene Magruder of Port Gibson, MS, two sons, John A. Magruder of Brattleboro, VT and Samuel B. HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 1991 GATHERING

The site for this year's Gathering was the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond, Virginia. The Jefferson is truly one of the most beautiful hotels in the country. Built in 1895, it was lavishly designed to cater to the wealthy of the times.

Each room is different from all others, both in shape and decorations. The dining room is a group of small intimate dinner rooms rather than one large open area. The lobby has a very excellent statue of Thomas Jefferson as its center attraction. A floor below the lobby is the Rotunda, a spacious area for all kinds of activities, with a beautiful balcony surrounding it, supported by huge marble columns. The stairway leading down from the lobby to the Rotunda is one of the most magnificent in the world. It is said to have inspired the main staircase of Tara in "Gone With The Wind". All in all, this was a most pleasant and comfortable setting for our 82nd Gathering.

Two hundred and thirty three MacGregors and their guests assembled from all over the country to enjoy their family, have fun and see to the business of the Society.

We started the festivities on Thursday evening with a reception for our new Chieftain, George McGregor, and his lovely wife, Anne, in the Rotunda. It is always a pleasure to greet old friends again and to meet the newcomers to the Gathering. It is interesting to watch the newcomers at the reception. They are quite unsure of just what will transpire, but after being welcomed by almost everyone in the room they begin to relax and realize that they are in for a most pleasant weekend.

The only worried faces in the crowd belonged to the Gathering Committee as they watched the pouring rain outside threaten the Friday activities.

Through the good auspices of our Chaplain, Ray Richardson, the rain gods were persuaded to cease and desist, and Friday dawned bright and sunny. This added an extra glow to the faces of the group as they registered in the morning while the Council Meeting was going on. After all, good weather makes for good tours.

We boarded our buses for the tour at noon and headed off for historic St. Johns Church for our Memorial Service. We were welcomed by ladies dressed in the costumes of the early 17th Century. They gave us a brief history of the church, which was founded about the time the Pilgrims were landing up north, including the fascinating story of the colonial meeting there which included Thomas Jefferson, George Mason and Patrick Henry. It was during the debate concerning a possible revolution that Patrick Henry gave his "...give me liberty or give me death" speech.

Following the Memorial Service we traveled through historic sections of Richmond to the Virginia House. There we were served a delicious box lunch of Virginia ham, with lots of other goodies.

Virginia House and Agecroft, right next door, are quite remarkable. Both of these structures were dismantled in England, transported to Richmond, and rebuilt, stone by stone and stick by stick, to their original state. It was really a wonderful experience to go through a fifteenth and sixteenth century house located right in Richmond.

The masonry, the hand hewn timbers and railings, the ancient leaded glass, the very dark wood, the original fireplaces, etc. were right there to see and touch and inhale. Perhaps the most remarkable item was a seventeen foot long stained glass window, transported intact without any damage to it whatsoever.

The furnishings to a large extent were authentic pieces from the period, which added to the splendid atmosphere of the houses. We all truly loved the entire tour.

Friday night our overworked senses were further enjoyably exercised by the fiddle playing of John Turner, one of the most outstanding Scottish Fiddle players in the world. John lives just a stone's throw from Richmond and was delighted to play for us after a ten year absence. We clapped along with his playing and laughed along with his dry humor and were sorry when it was over. It is a real treat to hear the real and authentic fiddle sounds from old times again.

We were still in the mood to be entertained, so our own John Masterson serenaded us with his inimitable singing and story telling. Is it any wonder you see so many smiling faces at the MacGregor Gathering?

After the General Meeting on Saturday morning, we enjoyed a delicious luncheon served by the hotel's excellent kitchen. Right after lunch, the ladies gathered to assemble the center pieces for the banquet tables. The centerpieces were designed by Virginia and Scott Street. They were very simple and very attractive: a bed of evergreens (brought by Martha and Merrill King all the way from Maine) with a group of cardinals, the Virginia State Bird, sitting on the branches, all illuminated by three red votive candles set amongst them - a real eye pleasing arrangement.

The Grand Staircase from the hotel lobby down to the Rotunda seems to be sitting there waiting for something special to happen. Well, we were there when it occurred.

We assembled in the Rotunda at three o'clock supposedly to hear a Pipe Band concert, but there was no sign of the band at all. Just as we were getting a little antsy we heard the pipes from above, and lo and behold here they came down that gorgeous staircase, one slow step at a time (all sixty of them) playing Scotland Forever. We were absolutely entranced. Never in your life have you seen so many open mouths and rapt expressions on people's faces. It was obviously a spectacle never to be forgotten. Needless to say, the concert was a huge success, culminating with the band marching right out of the hotel into the street as it finished. We just loved it.

Three hours later began the Daniel Randall Magruder Reception preceding the Banquet in that same Rotunda. With everyone dressed in his best bib and tucker - and kilt - we were in a very festive mood. A MacGregor Banquet is one of the most colorful events you can attend.

The Pipe Band led us into the Ballroom, soon followed by the piping in of the head table and then the piping in of the Chieftain. After the usual toasts, the Address to a Haggis was given by Bill Garrett. It is a real treat to listen to Bill present the address. Having been born in Scotland has left him with a wonderfully lilting Scottish accent which lends itself beautifully to the address. You certainly get the feeling that that is the way it is supposed to sound!

After dinner, George McGregor introduced three past Chieftains present, Bill McGregor of Charlotte, Burns Magruder of Barnstable, Massachusetts and Abbey Magruder of Jackson, Mississippi.

Joe Tichy spoke about the various scholarships which we sponsor, indicating that we had given our first moneys from the Harry and Edith Blunt Scholarship this year. Along the same lines, he announced that a chair in the Business School at the University of Virginia had been established in Coleman McGehee's name. It was nice to have such a distinguished gentleman as our Gathering Chairman this year.

George McGregor welcomed all to the Banquet and expressed his earnest desire to continue the fine leadership we have enjoyed down through the years and to make the Society stronger and better for all of the members.

Our Pipe Band then marched in to treat us one more time to the stirring sound of the pipes and drums. The two dancers performed flawlessly, and all of them were applauded long and loudly.

If Shakespeare was the bard of Stratford on Avon, then John Masterson has become the bard of MacGregor's Gathering. John has performed for us for many, many years now, yet we never tire of him. His style and wit are enchanting, and besides, he is the only one who knows all the words and can sing to the tune of "MacGregor's Gathering". He always leads us right up to the moment when we rise on our chairs, lift our dirks on high and shout "MacGregor Despite Them Shall Flourish Forever!"

The Gathering brings us together, but the warm family spirit of the occasion holds us together year after year.

REPORTS OF THE STATE DEPUTY CHIEFTAINS

The Colonial Highland Games were held on May 18th 1991 at Fair Hill, Maryland. Again this year the weather was great (just a little chilly), with a large crowd attending.

The gathering is held at the Fair Hill Steeplechase Race Course. The rolling grassy hills that surround the course give a flavor of Scotland. With the grandstands in place you have a perfect seat to watch the pipe bands come on the field in mass formation (15 or so bands) for the opening and closing of the games.

The piping and dancing competition is always great to enjoy. The Saint Andrews Society of Baltimore awards the Baltimore Challenger for the March, Strathspey and Reel. This year it was won by Piper James McGillvray of Canada.

We had additional clan tents this year which helps to draw more people seeking to know more about their heritage.

The Clan Gregor Society tent was again headed by John Grier and his wife Lillian. So that we can keep in touch with the people that show an interest in our clan, we will have a guest book.

To The Chieftain
American Clan Gregor Society, Inc.

This has been a busy year for Minnesota Clan Gregor. Here are some of the highlights:

- (1) I was appointed publicity chairperson of the Minnesota Coalition of Scottish Clans, which involved planning the advertising for our MacAlester Highland Games on May 6, 1991.
- (2) Our Highland Games and Fair was a great success. We had many people stop by our booth to talk and get information. The day was overcast but it did not dampen the spirits of people attending. At our noon Parade of Tartans, we had over 25 people marching behind the Gregor banner.
- (3) The evening before the Games, the Coalition sponsored a ceilidh with about 70 people representing over 20 clans. I was chosen to give the Address to the Haggis. It was an excellent time of fellowship.
- (4) In June I went to Duluth, Minnesota, for their Scottish Days to represent our Clan and to give out information. This was a two-day event and I talked to many people.
- (5) At the fall meeting of the Coalition, I was elected vice chairperson. This will give Clan Gregor many new opportunities for growth.
- (6) Most recently, this past weekend at Burns Night sponsored by the St. Andrew's Society of Minnesota, I once again delivered the Address to the Haggis before an enthusiastic crowd of 150-200 people.

Now the time has rolled around again to plan for the MacAlester Games in May. I will continue to inform you of any new developments with Clan Gregor of Minnesota.

REPORT OF SOCIETY ACTIVITIES IN FLORIDA, 1991

For the first time in a number of years, Clan Gregor and the American Clan Gregor Society were represented at all of the Games and Gatherings within the State of Florida. Many Clansmen were delighted to finally see themselves represented at these affairs, and many of the other Clans also voiced their welcome.

A Clan tent was hosted at the 14th Annual Orlando Scottish Highland Games in January. Twenty-six Clansmen signed the Guest Book and were given Society information and literature. Follow-up letters were mailed to them as membership prospects.

The Society was represented, as well, at the 8th Annual Southeast Florida Scottish Festival and Games held at Key Biscayne (Miami) the 2nd of March.

At these Games a great deal of assistance was given by Society members Jeffrey and Frieda McGregor and Winfield and Kathrine Mayne. Twenty MacGregor cousins visited the tent, as well as 7 present members — all-in-all a very busy and gratifying event in Key Biscayne.

The third affair at which we were in evidence was in Dunedin. Although these were much smaller games than the others, we had 11 prospects sign the Guest Book and receive information on our Society.

Plans are presently well underway to cover the final two meetings for 1991 in Florida — Pensacola in November (to be hosted by Paul & Milly Gregg) and Treasure Island (St. Petersburg), also in November.

In order to make a good presentation at all these doings, a large American Clan Gregor Society sign for the tent was prepared, as well as 2 sandwich boards - one with samples of the MacGregor Tartans and the other with a list of the MacGregor Sept Names. A parade banner was also made to be used in the Parade(s) of Tartans. Homemade "Glen Fruin" shortbread was tendered to all visitors, MacGregor or not, and was warmly received.

Naturally, the Society was named in all the programs for the above games.

Plans are in the making for a State Newsletter - perhaps bi-annually.

All of the aforementioned activities garnered a total of 4* new members from the State of Florida. A paltry amount, perhaps, but the seed of Clanship has been planted in a great many minds.

Respectfully submitted,

Malcolm G. MacGregor
Deputy Chieftain, Florida

*Over a ten percent increase.

1991 ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GEORGIA DEPUTY CHIEFTAIN AMERICAN CLAN GREGOR SOCIETY, INC.

Phone tree: I have collected just about everyone's telephone number and spoken to many of our members during the year. When Bess Kenney passed away, we got the word out to the people who knew her and had good showing at the funeral. I was able to attend, and I sent a wreath in the ACGS name.

Chapter organization: I had asked Lil Gregory to be my correspondence assistant last spring, but arthritis has kept her from doing it. I am currently trying to spread the responsibilities around somewhat.

Recruiting: We have two events during the year in which we can formally reach MacGregors who might be interested enough in their genealogy to apply. The main one, the Stone Mountain Highland Games, is tried and true, with dozens of new faces each year (these Games have a paid attendance in excess of 25,000). The other event, a Rob Roy dinner, was new this year but well attended by ACGS and CGS members. We are projecting that it will become a fund-raiser at some point.

SMHG: We share a tent with the Clan Gregor Society. It is like the tent at Grandfather Mountain - lots of food, well-attended, a good Parade of Tartans. For the second year, the ACGS and the CGS are co-sponsoring the trophy for the Adult Kilted Mile, designated simply as the Clan Gregor trophy. It helps our cause tremendously when ACGS members from other states join us and when we have the banner and Sir Gregor's pinnon.

The Future: As I get to know more of our members personally, I believe that more of them will come forward to help out and that the sense of being part of a state-level organization will grow.

Yours aye,

Donald W. Gregg
State Deputy Chieftain

KENTUCKY GAMES, 1991

The Kentucky Scottish Games were held during delightful spring weather.

First, on May 10, 11, and 12 was the ninth annual Kentucky Scottish Weekend at General Butler State Park in Carrollton, KY. It was especially memorable for Kentucky Gregors, as our Chieftain, George McGregor, and his wife, Anne, were in attendance. Other highlights occurred when the MacGregor Pipe Band of Massillon, Ohio won a second place in the band competition, and Joel McGregor's team, the Rob Roys, placed second in the Kilted Golf Tournament.

On May 28th through June 2nd, the sixth annual Glasgow Highland Games were held at Barren River Lake State Park, including for the first time, a Tatoo. John MacKenzie, Chief of Clan MacKenzie, Earl of Cromartie, and Lady MacKenzie were the honored guests. The RHR Seaforth Highlanders of Canada and the Marine Corps Combat Development Band of Quantico, VA delighted spectators. Malcolm and Barbara MacGregor, up from Florida to sample Kentucky Games, shared the tent duties and added pleasure to the weekend.

I manned a tent or table at four Scottish events this year:
June 2nd, Genesee Country Museum, Mumford, N.Y.

August 10th, Central New York Scottish Games.

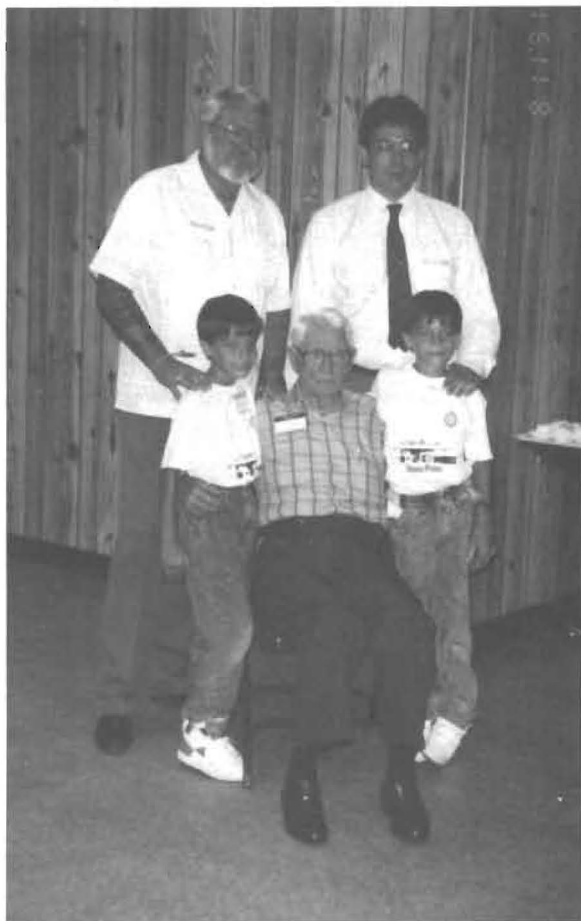

A nice sunny day made the parade of tartans very colorful, aided by the MacGregor Banner I carried.

August 31st, Capitol District Scottish Games.

We were side by side with the tent of the Clan Gregor Society. We spent the day helping each other restake our tents after the wind had leveled them. Some clans finally just left their tents down. We had a large turnout of people and a goodly number visit the tent.

September 14th, Amherst Museum Colony Park.

A DISTINGUISHED CAREER

Brigadier General George Ogden

Brigadier General George Ogden was born in Macon, Mississippi, January 5, 1935. He is the son of Mary Lillian Peters Odgen Whitten, Clan No. 1096, of Macon and the late George C. Ogden.

He graduated from Mississippi State University in 1958, receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Industrial Education and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Ordnance Corps. He also received a Master of Science degree in Commerce from the University of Alabama in 1967.

In 1961 General Ogden was assigned to Germany, where he commanded the 557th Ordnance Company, then served as operations officer in the 85th Ordnance Battalion.

In June 1967 he was assigned to Viet Nam, where he served in the Division Support Command, 1st Cavalry Division, as a Forward Support Control Officer and as a Maintenance Staff Officer, Headquarters, 1st Logistics Command. He returned to the United States in 1968, serving as Personnel Management Officer in the Officer Personnel Directorate in Washington, DC.

Upon completion of the command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, he was assigned to the Pentagon where he served as Logistics Staff Officer and later in the Office of the Project Manager for Reorganization under the Army Chief of Staff.

After a stint as Commander of the 85th Maintenance Battalion in Germany, he was assigned as Commander of the 3rd Armored Division Material Management Center.

In 1976, General Ogden attended the United States Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island, graduating in 1977. He was then assigned to command the 45th Support Group at Schofield Barracks and then served as Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, U.S. Army Western Command, Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

Later assignments include those of Deputy Commander for Training Developments, then Combat Developments, Army Logistics Center, Fort Lee, Virginia and as Commander of the Supply and Distribution Management Division at the Army Material Development and Readiness Command at Alexandria, Virginia.

Awards and decorations which General Ogden has received include the Legion of Merit (with two Oak Leaf Clusters), the Meritorious Service Medal (with one Oak Leaf Cluster) and the Army Commendation Medal (with three Oak Leaf Clusters). He is also authorized to wear the Parachutist Badge and the Army General Staff Identification Badge.

General Ogden's career culminated in being assigned as Commander, Defense General Supply Center in Richmond, Virginia. Completing three and one half years as Commander, and after 31 years in the United States Army, General Ogden chose to retire.

For his accomplishments while commanding the Defense Supply Center, General Ogden was presented with the Defense Distinguished Service Medal. The citation accompanying the medal, awarded by the Secretary of Defense, cited General Ogden for extraordinary leadership and dedication to duty which resulted in an unequalled level of support provided by the Defense General Supply Center to its customers in the military services. It further recognized his many contributions to include dynamic leadership of a complex organization, the sustained high level of organizational productivity under most difficult circumstances and improved quality of logistics operation.

A HOME THAT STEPS RIGHT OUT OF HISTORY

An historic treasure is on the market in Montgomery County, Maryland.

It is the 18th century home of Revolutionary War patriot Col. Zadok Magruder, a founder of Montgomery County, after whom nearby Magruder High School is named. It has been designated an historic site by the National Register of Historic Places.

Inside, the house is comfortable and immaculate, with four working fireplaces for winter evenings and a large screened porch for summer evenings.

The owner is a history buff who values the original architecture of the house, pointing out window glass and woodwork, floors and staircase and ceiling beams with the words, "This is all original 18th century."

She has maintained in museum condition the original 1733 kitchen, with huge fireplace, complete with old iron pots and other implements of the period. The old kitchen, with bay window and stone window ledge, takes up the entire first floor of the 1733 stone house. On the second floor, where there was once slave quarters, is a bedroom with two dormer windows and full bathroom. The bedroom and the bathroom have vaulted ceilings with exposed hand hewn beams.

The breezeway connects the original stone house with what became the main brick house upon its completion in 1750.

The brick house has another three bedrooms upstairs with two bathrooms. Downstairs, the small library, which was once the medical office of Col. Magruder's son, Zadok, Jr., is off the living room. The dining room fireplace hearth boasts the paw print of a small cat, who, in the mid 1700's apparently stepped on the newly made bricks when they were drying before they laid them.

The curved staircase in the brick house still retains its original ogee molding and bannister. It is older than what you see in Williamsburg. Most of the houses there have been restored. Most of the rooms in the house have their original red pine floors.

The property, known as "The Ridge", was in Frederick County in the 1700s when the Magruders bought it. In 1750, Zadok Magruder inherited "The Ridge" from his father, John Magruder, who had purchased it from Thomas Gittings of Baltimore in 1733.

On June 11, 1774, shortly after the Boston Tea Party, 45 year old Zadok Magruder met with a small number of inhabitants of the lower part of Frederick County, where he was elected to a committee to attend the First Maryland Convention held in Annapolis on June 22, 1774. There they adopted "The Articles of Association of the Freeman of Maryland". Zadok was elected one their leaders, which gave him a large role in developing the government of Maryland as we know it today.

When Frederick County was broken into three sections designated as counties in 1776, Col. Magruder was appointed as one of the commissioners to organize the new county known as Montgomery, and they established the county seat at what is now known as Rockville.

Zadok Magruder fought in the Revolutionary War and contributed money for arms and ammunition. History has it that he was a good friend of George Washington, who owned land not far from "The Ridge". Zadok is mentioned several times in the diary of George Washington. It is very possible that Washington visited “The Ridge”, but whether or not he slept there is buried deep in history.

In 1866, when a new road was cut through the property connecting Rockville and Laytonsville, it was named Muncaster Mill Road after a Magruder descendant, John E. Muncaster, son of Hannah Magruder Muncaster. Muncaster Mill Road is now The Ridge’s front property line.

“The Ridge” remained in the Magruder family for two hundred and nineteen years, until 1953.

This home on Muncaster Mill Road in Derwood, Md., is said to be oldest unaltered 18th-century brick house in Montgomery County.

The following letter to the editor appeared in the London Times on August 18, 1991.

One Thing Real Scotsmen Won't Wear

On August 4 your newspaper attacked a group of eminent journalists - the offence was not entirely clear. Your latest target is a group of people who go to Scotland on holiday, enjoy some dancing and partake in various outdoor pursuits (Style, last week). Quite what offends you so much about this is, again, unclear. I feel that you mock Scottish heritage.

The kilt we all know, you say, dates back only to the mid-19th century. Not so. The filibeg or little kilt is believed to have been introduced by Thomas Rawlinson (an Englishman) who was an iron smelter in Glengarry in the 1730s. This was done because plaid was too cumbersome to be worn for work. By 1785 the kilt had become a popular form of dress.

Sir Walter Scott did not just "throw a party for George IV" as you suggested. George's visit to Scotland was of considerable political importance. Clans which had fought one another, not just at Culloden, were brought together. No monarch had set foot in Scotland since Charles II was crowned at Scone in 1651. My great-great-great-grandfather commanded the MacGregor contingent escorting the crown jewels during the visit and at the banquet gave the loyal toast: Chief of chiefs - the King!

ESCAPE FROM SINGAPORE

The American Clan Gregor Society has been publishing this Yearbook since 1910. In the intervening years, there have been many interesting and exciting articles written about MacGregors, their families, adventures or maybe just their feelings.

Probably most of the current members of the Society have not had the opportunity to read and enjoy these early contributions by our members, so in this issue we are starting a program of reprinting some of the more interesting articles from the past. We hope that it will prove to be both enjoyable and possibly educational to our current readers.

The following story appeared in the 1944 Yearbook. It was written by Major George Lloyd Magruder, son of Lloyd Burns Magruder and brother to L. Burns Magruder, our past Chieftain. The escape from Singapore took place on February 13, 1942.

It was about the time of my last letter [the middle of January] that I decided, from what I could see and also from what I knew in the Military Observer's office, that the time would come when it would be a healthy thing to get out of Singapore. I also decided that when that time came the best and safest way would be in a small boat. As you know, I was already the part owner of a twenty-three foot sailboat, so I got together with the other owners and we made plans and began to get stores and charts together.

Both were hard to come by. All canned goods were rationed and there were severe penalties for hoarding. And charts were hard to get for obvious reasons. But we managed to get together enough food for a week which we buried, and I got charts from the Admiralty.

The rest of our stay in Singapore was a matter of dodging bombs and otherwise trying to keep healthy. Looking back on it now, it seems like a sort of dangerous game. It did add a zest of living and kept our interest aroused, if nothing else. I'm not trying to be funny or brag when I say that. It is quite true. After the first few raids on a city you get over being scared and it becomes a game to figure out a day's schedule ahead of time so that you won't be around when the Japs come over, and otherwise staying out of harm's way.

All the time we heard about the Japs coming nearer and nearer until finally they were just across the Straits from the island. About that time the bank decided it was time for the staff to get out, so we arranged with one of the English banks to take over our holdings. Up to that time I was working on the schedule as outlined in my earlier letter—that is, halftime with the bank and the rest of the day and a good part of the night with the Army. The only thing good about it was that I was getting paid for both. Anyway, the bank's affairs were practically cleaned up when the Japs arrived across the Straits and the rest of the bank staff got on a boat and headed for India, leaving me behind to finish up a few odds and ends and then become "Army" fulltime.

The Japs landed on Singapore Island on a Sunday night. They laid down an overwhelming artillery barrage and followed this with dive-bombing attacks. One of the officers in the military observer's office had been through the last war. He said that it was bigger than anything he had ever heard in France. We expected, after we heard that the landing had taken place, that the Japs would get the hell beaten out of them. But when they hadn't been thrown off the island by Monday night it was obvious to everyone who had any idea of what was what that the place was due to fall. We were convinced of it and said so in the cables to Washington, hoping that they would get the idea there and give us orders to get out. It was a ticklish spot to be in because we were supposedly attached to the British GHQ who were far more hopeful than we were. And we couldn't just go up and tell them we thought the game was over. Somebody, however, solved the problem very neatly by ordering us to Burma "using any feasible route."

I got hold of the other owners of the boat and went down to the yacht club to make final preparations. The only thing that prevented us from getting out at once was that our boat had been hit by a bomb fragment and was under water. We managed to pull her up on the beach and patched her up so she would stay afloat until the next bomb came too close. That took us until Tuesday night. And since boats were not allowed to move in the harbor after dark it meant we would have to wait until just before dusk Wednesday before we could shove off. We didn't want to be sailing during the daytime, both because of possible machine-gunning and because we would be burned crisp by the sun.

That last night on the island was really something. Frankly, I was too scared to sleep, or at least to take off my clothes. I couldn't have slept anyway because of all the noise and confusion. We lived at about the center of the island, and on that particular night the Japs drove a deep penetration into the island. The penetration was later corrected by a partly successful counterattack by the English. The next day was spent in the usual manner—mostly in trenches when the Japs came over, and they were over about every half hour. About three in the afternoon we dug our food up and went down to the yacht club and loaded everything aboard and set sail just before five. We planned to sail all night and lay up on one of the thousands of small islands that are south of Singapore during the day.

We were only about a mile off shore when the Japs came in with a terrible raid on the harbor shipping. We were lucky that we had gotten out when we did. We sailed along beautifully for about an hour and a half. By that time it was dark and we felt so safe we were enjoying beer and watching Singapore behind us, a mass of flames and smoke, when suddenly shots rang out over us, coming from one of the Dutch oil islands just ahead of us. We yelled and screamed and waved from the deck in the dusk when some more shots whistled and skipped fairly close to us. It was apparent that the Dutch didn't want us coming any nearer, or even to move around out there in the dark, because still more shots whistled near when we turned and tried to sail around the island. But they were either bad shots or not serious about it because they fired about twenty rounds of rifle fire and none hit either us or the boat though we were only about five hundred yards away. We pulled down the sail and threw out the anchor and that seemed to satisfy the Dutch because they stopped shooting. We tried to yell to them but we were too far out to be heard. So we settled down to some more beer and food and watched Singapore (now about ten miles behind us) burn and explode. It is impossible to describe the sight; the nearest I can come to it would be to have you picture Hollywood's idea of a real catastrophe in one of their "super-epics." It was awful and it was unreal, and I am certain no one could ever imagine it in the wildest imagination. It may sound silly to say it, but even now that it's over and done with, it doesn't seem real to me.

Sometime during that night the big British guns on Singapore opened up against what I am convinced was a feeler on the part of the Japs for a direct frontal assault by sea. I was looking back—as all of us were—at the awesome spectacle of Singapore burning when one of the almost hundreds of British searchlights picked up a small warship and all the rest of the lights converged on it. Then the big British guns spoke from the shore batteries and in a few minutes that warship was literally blown out of the water. Since then, I've always thought that the Japs were trying to find out if the coast defenses were as poor as the rest of the defenses. They weren't. And I imagine the Japs called off the rest of a fairly sizable fleet that must have been in those waters. The thing that made it so unreal to us was that we were far enough away not to hear anything but the crash of the really heavy bombs and big guns, and those were only booms when they reached us. There could have been no greater contrast than the contrast between those noises and the peaceful lapping of the waves against the sides of our boat. But the quietness of our position finally made us all fall asleep.

Dawn came quickly and we sailed over to the pier of the little Dutch island. The Dutch apologized for firing on us, but explained that they weren't taking any chances. They were getting ready to set fire to the oil storage tanks, and said that they were leaving as soon as they had done that and that they would be glad to have us come along with them. We had just accepted when a launch came over from Singapore filled with Englishmen who had no idea of where they were going and had no charts to go there even if they had known. We traded our charts for the right to come along with them.

But first we helped the Dutch with thier final preparations for firing the island and all the while Jap planes were circling overhead. Nobody paid much attention to them because all the way down the Peninsula they had never attacked oil storage tanks, seemingly because they hoped to capture them intact. We finally got off in our boat and watched well over a million barrels of oil and gasoline go up in smoke. When the Jap planes saw the smoke from the tanks they began to attack the tanks and the men left on the island. I saw two Jap dive-bombers dive on a tank just as the tank exploded. The two planes were simply swallowed up in the flames.

We laid offshore for a while and then went on. During the day we cruised past thousands of little islands that lie south and west of Singapore on the way to Sumatra. By night we had passed through all these islands and had a stretch of about sixty miles of open water to sail to reach the Sumatran coast. We tried to find a place to land for the night but there was much too much coral around and we were afraid the tide might catch the boats and leave us high and dry. So we set a course and started out. The sea was calm and the night black. Even from where we were now, almost sixty miles from Singapore, we could still see the flames in the sky, and the smoke all but blotted out the stars. During the night we were nearly run down by a steamer that came tearing up from behind us. Both ships were completely blacked out. You can imagine how black the night was when I tell you that I am convinced the other ship never saw us at all, and we didn't see him until he was just a few hundred feet from us. We didn't dare hail him because that is a trick submarines use and we were afraid he might open fire on us.

Morning found us, surprisingly, right where we expected we would be, and we thought it would be easy from there on. But that was wishful thinking, for an hour after dawn, while we were still twenty miles out but in sight of shore, the engine suddenly quit. It had been running almost continuously for twenty-four hours and was only meant to be used for short jaunts, so we weren't surprised. We drifted and paddled to one of those native fishing bagas—houses built on poles driven into the bed of the sea. They are not in deep water although they seem to be in the middle of the ocean, because the natives pick shoals and river mouths to build them in. This one was twenty miles out from land.

We tried to get the engine going but without success. The natives seemed to enjoy watching us coming out of the engine pit wringing wet with sweat. They jabbered and laughed and giggled at us. Finally we gave up the engine, and decided to get one of the natives to sail us in a sampan to the nearest town on Sumatra. Because I was in uniform it was decided that I and another one of us would go. There was only room for two. We approached the natives, only to find out that they were all insane—probably the result of intermarriage and incest. Eighteen of them lived in that ordinary-sized house perched on sticks in the water. For the better part of two hours we tried to get them to be sensible and listen to what we were saying. Money didn't mean a thing to them; I took off my insignia, polished them on my sleeve and offered them, but all they did was giggle and laugh. We finally got hungry and one of our fellows brought out a can of Heinz's baked beans. Just as soon as the sort of elder of the бага saw that can he came up and said that he knew a store where he could buy more. Then he began to laugh again, but finally we managed to get him to see that we wanted to buy some more and that he ought to show us where the place was. It worked.

I've never been on such a ride in my life. The water was choppy and right up to within an inch of the gunwale of the sampan. The old man sat in the back of the thing and laughed and giggled all the way. It took us from nine in the morning until eleven that night to get to the town. Every now and then the old fool seemed to be crazier than before and would turn the boat around and start sailing in an entirely different direction. Several times I thought seriously of shooting him, but then we would bring the can of beans out and he would come to his senses and head back towards shore again. That ride was the only time on the trip that I ever got panicky or really worried. We couldn't be sure of the native and I couldn't help but imagine he was trying to put us in the hands of the Japs. However, he finally got us to the little town, where we went up to see the Dutch controller, who immediately put a launch at our disposal with which we could go and get the others out on the бага. We got back to them just at dawn. In the meantime a Royal Navy tug had gone by the бага. All our fellows but one had got aboard it. This one fellow said he had a hunch and he was certainly right. For later that tug ran smack into the Jap fleet attacking Palembang.

After getting back to shore we arranged for the launch to take us up the river a little further to Tembilahan, which was the nearest place with any communication outside and a place for us to get some sleep. From there we hired another launch to go about eighty miles up the river to a place called Ringat, which was the nearest place that had any transportation bigger than a river launch. Here we hired a car and started out for the south of Sumatra with the idea of trying to get to Java. We had gone about a third of the way when we were stopped and told that the Japs had landed paratroops at Palembang and that we would go on only at our own risk. We decided to try and make it. However, about nine o'clock that night we were stopped again, and the commandant of the Dutch troops told me that the Japs were about thirty miles down the road and across it.

That was enough. We turned around and headed back toward Padang, the nearest seaport. The Dutch had thrown up roadblocks about every fifty miles or less, and at each place I would get out and see the commander and get what information I could. The only thing they knew was that the Japs were "just thirty miles down the road." We didn't stop for thirty-six hours and finally reached Padang. That was the wildest motor ride I have ever had—over some of the worst roads in existence, over mountains covered with mist and the jungle reaching down to the edge of the trail.

At Padang I wired Java and asked for instructions. The answer wasn't very helpful. It said that I could go anywhere I wanted to, but to get out of Sumatra. After two days I went down to the harbor with the idea of seeing what I could do about hiring or buying some sort of a fisherman's boat to sail us down to Java. I was in the office of the Dutch commander of the port when he told me that a destroyer was coming to take off some of the British. From there on in it was easy. Two hundred and sixty-two of us piled on that destroyer and slept and stayed on deck for two nights and a day. It was luxurious compared to what we had been through and I take my hat off to the British Navy. They handled that ship beautifully. There was a lifesaver for every person on board and they served three hot meals a day. We five Americans who were aboard sent the wardroom a gift after we reached Batavia. But I'm afraid it is down at the bottom of the sea now. The destroyer went down in the Battle of Java.

We didn't stay long in Java. We left there the last day of February and came to Australia without any trouble. A Jap plane flew over for an hour just at sunset on the first day out, but evidently those to whom he radioed our position missed us in the night.

I can't tell you exactly where I am in Australia. As you can imagine, I am tickled to death with my work and, if I do say so myself, am pretty proud to be where I am. The hours are long and we work seven days a week, but we are getting things done and are somewhere on the way to getting the whole mess cleaned up.

The people here have really welcomed us with open arms. I never thought any people could be so hospitable.
