RUNNING IN THE HALLS

Discipline is my problem. Through the years I've run through the halls and have never been disciplined enough. All this developed into my bad habit of running in the halls. My teachers never said enough to me about running in the halls. It has just developed over the years and I'll have to break the habit somehow. This is how over the years my running in the halls habit started.

Dear Mr. Froelicher,

I appreciate your long letter. I am sorry I was not able to get you by telephone to talk over some of these matters. I hope that things will work out so that I can be a useful member of this Committee. I am certainly interested in the Cevenol and continue to be interested in what it stands for, particularly the international aspect of its concerns. Therefore, the C.I.S. invitation is a most appealing one.

I would very much enjoy an opportunity to talk with you personally about some of these things. Will you be coming north of Baltimore any time this summer? We will be here in Northampton during July and I would be glad to go down to New York to meet you. We will be less accessible out on Cape Cod during August. I will be in Trenton, N.J., the weekend of July 31 and, if there were any possibility of getting together with you immediately before or after that weekend, I should certainly make the effort to do so. Also, I must say I would enjoy meeting the person about whom I have heard so much and so many of whose relatives I have known for these past several years.

My kind regards to you.

Yours sincerely,

Richard P. Unsworth

Dear Miss Sanderson,

I am sorry for the long delay in answering your letter of April 28th. I have been trying to get in touch with Mr. Froelicher by telephone to talk over some aspects of your kind invitation to join the Executive Committee of C.I.S. Mr. Froelicher is very elusive, however, and I shall have to write to you without benefit of his counsel.

Let me say, first, that I am honored and pleased by the invitation. From what I know of the work of C.I.S., and its importance in promoting concern for international education, I am most enthusiastic about the possibility of having some part in its work. I have heard something about it, of course, through Mr. Froelicher and Mr. and Mrs. Sangree, the American representatives of the College Cevenol these past fifteen years, and through W. Theis. I should like to accept your invitation. The question is whether or not I can responsibly do so. The primary obstacle is concerned with regular attendance at the meetings of the Executive Committee. I can see hopes of being able to do so, but no certainties. The hopes are two: Mr. Froelicher's suggestion that he would attempt to raise some funds in this country to cover overhead expenses of C.I.S. activities, and the possibility that I may from time to time be sent to the Cevenol by our Board. The problem of taking time to make the trips is more easily met. We are usually in recess during the Easter season for two weeks, and I can arrange my work to be away from the college during recess. The financial means are less predictable, for, like teachers' salaries the world over, mine is regularly exhausted by the necessities of a family of five! If, however, the work with Cevenol requires at least infrequent trips, or Mr. Froelicher's suggestion materializes, it would then be possible for me to attend meetings.

In the light of all this, I think I should leave it to you to decide whether it is in the best interests of C.I.S. to have me accept their invitation. If you think so, I shall be pleased to serve. If you think not, I shall quite readily understand, and will be none the less interested in the welfare of the organization.

Incidentally, you mentioned the teachers' conference being planned for 1961. I will be coming through France that summer, God willing, on my way to East Africa. I am to serve as one of the leaders of a group of American students going there for work camps with African students under the Crossroads Africa program. The dates are uncertain, but we are going at the end of June and will be returning about the third week in August. There will be some time allowed in France on the return leg of the journey, and I hope to employ that in a visit to leChambon.

May I repeat my appreciation of your invitation. I look forward to hearing from you. In the meanwhile, I remain,

Yours very truly,
Dear Hans:

I have your note of June 1 and we are sending to your Baltimore address the following materials:

Advanced Placement Programs - special report
Administration of Faculty Compensation - special report
NCIS Reports Nos. 53-58
Hechinger - Key Role of the Private School
Special Report on Tuition, 1959-60

I assume that you have copies of the two questionnaires published by the Educational Practices Committee.

Dear Mr. Froelicher:

Torch is away from the office for a vacation, so I am acknowledging your letter of June 30th. The Hechinger reprint was purchased by Bob Anderson and the Council for Independent School Aid, and we have only a few copies left here. CISA has now moved its office to New York, and I have written a note to Bob asking him to see that you get the thirty copies you want. In the event that there is any slip-up, his address is Robert Anderson, Council for Independent School Aid, 4 West 43rd Street, New York.

Our annual meeting is behind us and I think went pretty well. We are in the midst of trying to catch up on all of the loose ends which always seem to follow a gathering of this sort. We are looking forward to having Chuck with us at our Administrative Seminar at Exeter this next week.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Hans,

How good to hear from you again and from John Hopkins too! The mantle of John Dewey, I am sure, could not have fallen on worthier shoulders.

I am a little aghast at the idea of American students using my "Education in the U.S.A.", particularly as Chapter III contains a number of errors which are due for correction in the next edition of the book — errors which you will hardly have failed to note.

You ask for suggestions for your bibliography. Unfortunately I am writing this from Wales en route for the South of France and consequently have no access to my library shelves; in any case, the fiscal and legal aspects of American education have always seemed to me to be mysteries best grappled with, and best understood, by those on the spot (this means YOU!) I think, however, that your students would profit from reading any of the following: "What's Happened to the High Schools?" (by Dean Latimer of Washington), "American Education To-day" (Symposium of articles published in "The Nation" — including one by myself), "One Third of a Nation", "The 48 States" (published by the Council of State Governments). There's also an elementary text-book by Myers called "Education in a Democracy." Sorry, but I fear that my memory for authors and publishers is not as good as it might be. As soon as I return in September I'll send you a more scholarly list. Meantime, have you read Geiger's "John Dewey To-day?" First-rate. It should be made compulsory reading in all American Schools of Education.

It is sad to think that it is now three summers since we met on the Vassar campus. If you know of any opportunities for visiting lecturers from the U.K. in 1961 do, please, let me know at once. I should very much like to sound out the climate of opinion in the Post-Sputnik era.

P.S. You say it is fun to have a reason for writing. In future, I trust, old acquaintance will be reason enough.

Dear Edouard:

It has been good to hear something about you from Richard Unsworth and Carl Sangree. I do hope that this letter finds Mildred and you and yours well.

You can see from the letterhead that I am teaching in the summer school here. One of the professors (head of the Department of Social Relations) Dr. James S. Coleman is teaching this summer in France. I suggested to him that he and his wife try to visit the College Cevenol. Perhaps you might send him a postal card if such a visitor would be welcome. He is especially interested in secondary schools. Dr. Coleman's address is Palace Hotel, Menthon-St. Bernard, Haute Savoy, France.

I expect to see Richard Unsworth before the end of this month. It is fine that he has been elected to the executive committee of C.I.S. I have been in correspondence with Miss Sanderson and I hope to raise some money in order to make possible the development of C.I.S. and the holding of a teacher conference at the College Cevenol in 1961.

This letter brings affectionate greetings from Joyce and me to you and yours.

Sincerely,

Hans Froelicher, Jr.

Dear Richard Unsworth:

It was good to get your letter in Colorado. Without reciting a list of unusual interruptions due to the illnesses of others, I could not explain my delay in answering. Since June 27 I have been fully engaged in teaching at the summer school here.

If I am to start as I promised to raise money for C.I.S. in August, it is important that I take advantage of your expected visit to Trenton on the weekend of July 31. My only complication is that each week day I teach two hours in the morning (until August 5). If we could have an afternoon and evening together between July 28 and August 1 (inclusive dates) that would be fine for me. We would happily put you up for the night. Won't you look at your calendar and select a time? You could then telephone me or write me, picking out the time that suits you best. I should say that we are apt to be away from Friday afternoon till late Sunday evening.

With kind regards and looking forward to seeing you,

I am,

Thank you very much for the reprints from the NEA Journal. I have ordered copies for my pupils here and for my two educational sons. It is a wonderfully good thumbnail summary.

Did I tell you that our son Fred has now finished his second year of teaching in a junior high school in Connecticut? He will go to Nashville to teach in an independent school there next September.

Dear Hans:

Thank you for your letter of June 30. I, too, have been interested in the work of Professor James S. Coleman. I had some correspondence with him in April, and he was good enough to send me reprints of three of his articles. I sent him a copy of the report of the 1959 conference, containing the talks by Mallery and Eddy, at that time.

Our supply of the Mallery report is exhausted except for a couple of file copies. We are sending one of these copies to Professor Coleman at his office.

Mr. Mallery will work this fall on a revision of his report and will submit it to our Committee on School and College Relations. One of the book publishers has expressed an interest in publishing the revised report when it is ready.

I agree with you that there would be merit, at least from our standpoint, in establishing a line of communication between the work of the Committee on School and College Relations and that of the Department of Social Relations at Johns Hopkins University.

Best personal regards,

Sincerely,

Arthur E. Traxler

Dear Dr. Huffington:

This will find you, I hope, acclimated to being one mile high and rejoicing to be with your children and grandchildren.

Your visit to my two classes stands out as a rare experience for them and for me. The information you gave us was important, but much more to be remembered was the contagion of your feeling about the work and experience and the interpretation of the State Department of Education as helper, inviter, and friend. The sense of this you left with us all.

Enclosed herewith is a carbon copy of my correspondence with the Baltimore Sun for your amusement.

I do hope that you will make your Denver visit in part a busman's holiday by seeing our son Charles in Colorado Academy. I wrote him a note saying that you might call. You will find his name in the telephone book under F. Charles Froelicher.

To my gratitude for your visit I now add my gratefulness for the pamphlets that you sent me. They are instantly useful for my class and I am adding them to the Education Library here.

The minutes of your meeting turned out to be in beautiful outline. You spoke so generously and informally that this had to come to light later. What we had was an impression of the way to steer a course through the complex of staff arrangements, the law, and individual responsibilities. And it was such fun for me to have my class have the experience of your competence after the years since we first met.

Thank you very, very much for your visit and for the materials which you let me have.

Yesterday, as so often you are, you were most generous. Our tiny seminar had a real privilege in talking with you and in hearing from you. They appreciated the opportunity to the full. They are determined each in his own way to register the teachers needs so firmly with the administration that the architect must know the program he is hired to organize into a structure—know it down to the details, special, for each class room. And they will not forget that all architects cost the same in the first instance but that some are very expensive in the long run!

And I enjoyed not only the hour but also the preliminaries and the sequel. It was good to catch up with you a little, anyhow.

Many, many thanks.
