Dear ~~Congresswoman~~ ^{Helen} Bentley:

I am writing to share with you some exciting news that I know you will find of interest. On November 30, 1992, over 500 delegates from 39 European nations as well as from across the U.S. and Canada will be arriving in Baltimore for a six day Europe-America Conference for Emerging Leaders. The Conference is sponsored by the American Center for International Leadership, a 501-(c)-(3) organization that moved its headquarters from Indiana to Baltimore two years ago.

Enclosed are some background materials both on ACIL and the upcoming conference. If you or a member of your staff would like a personal briefing on the conference, ACIL President Stephen Hayes and myself would be pleased to provide one at your convenience.

Best regards,

David W. Gillice
Conference Director

P.S. Congrats on another landslide!

ACIL

EUROPE-AMERICA CONFERENCE

NOVEMBER 30 - DECEMBER 5
1992

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND

AMERICAN CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL LEADERSHIP

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of ACIL is to develop in emerging leaders international leadership skills that will enable them to contribute to a more stable national and global society.

ACIL is committed to three unique objectives:

- To create opportunities for a diverse group of developing leaders from the United States and their counterparts abroad, many of whom would not normally have the chance to participate in a serious international dialogue. The Center's programs primarily serve young and mid-career professionals between the ages of 25 and 45.

- To pioneer in building bridges to countries where official and private relations have been strained or non-existent. Against a backdrop of superpower rivalry, for example, ACIL developed an extensive network of personal and professional contacts between young leaders in the United States, the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

- To focus domestic programs in regions of the United States where opportunities for an extended dialogue with foreign leaders and experts seldom exist.

Economic Section

1. Entrepreneurship
2. Agriculture Trade Policy
3. Science and Technology Cooperation
4. International Finance
5. International Trade Law

Political Section

6. Changing Defense: Changing Relationships
7. North-South Relations
8. International Political Parties
9. Migration and Immigration
10. Economic Conversion

Environmental Section

11. Cleaning the Seas (Chesapeake, Baltic, Mediterranean)
12. Land Use and Reforestation
13. Energy: Alternative Courses
14. Atmospheric Problems
15. Toxic Wastes

Human Needs

16. Spiritual Values and Market Economies
17. Managing the Changing Urban Environment
18. Housing Needs in a Growing World
19. Employment and Education in a Technological Society
20. Health Care in the 21st Century

Commission Coordinators

A coordinator for each commission will be selected. While heavy preference will be to draw the coordinator from the Washington-Baltimore section, the coordinator may be from anywhere in the USA.

Coordinators are selected with four primary criteria in mind: (1) Knowledge of subject area, (2) widely respected by peers, (3) an active recruiter of US delegates, and (4) openness to other points of view.

Recruitment of participants

US participants will be recruited by ACIL and the commission coordinators.

European participants will be selected by ACIL and/or other selected European-related bodies in cooperation and consultation with selected governments and other networks. US commission chairs may also be helpful to the nomination process.

Conference Format

The conference will have seven sessions per commission. There also will be an opening and closing plenary, each with a major European or US speaker. Plenary sessions will be open to the public.

On-site visits to interests related to this commission will also be structured in the program.

Community Involvement

Community involvement is highly desired. Community events will be structured in an evening program.

Follow-up

The specific charge of each commission will be to move the discussions to focus upon concrete programs that can be followed through by commission members themselves and their respective organizations as well as recommendations for ACIL.

Four to six weeks after the conference, commission chairs will meet with the planning committee to review the conference and its recommendations and explore next steps.

For ACIL, it is expected that several specific program options will develop.

Delegates will also be encouraged to publish their views nationally and internationally.

Country Delegates

Largest Representatives (20 delegates)

England	Poland	Canada
France	Russia
Germany	Spain
